ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR OPENS

BOARD THINKS 1928 EVENT WILL EXCEED PREVIOUS AFFAIRS

Fine Exhibits Mark Exposition Here; Races Feature

The eighty-ninth annual Greene County Fair, July 31 to August 3, keeping step with unprecedented progress recorded during past years, will present for the public's approval Wednesday the largest and best fair in its history.

This year the program arranged will far exceed any previous year's exhibits. Tuesday was technically the opening day and throngs of people wended their way through the fairgrounds watching final preparations being made by exhibitors.

The fair, Secretary J. Robert Bryson points out, is not only a place to receive education, but to obtain benefits from exhibiting products, wares, live stock, fine arts and many other things on which its welfare is dependent.

"It is the one week in the fifty-two where much valuable information is assembled and will bring knowledge to the attendants that will add to their prosperity and happiness for years to come," he said.

The 1928 fair is expected to surpass any fair of previous years by way of exhibits, amusements and horse races.

The cream of products and all pursuits and activities of the people of Greene County are on display. Primarily, of course, the fair is an agricultural exposition, as it has been traditionally. It is sufficiently diversified, however, to appeal to all classes and occupations.

The enrollment of the Boys and Girls 4-H Club Exhibits, which have been a part of the fair for several years, is estimated at 450. Their exhibits will include 250 in clothing, seventy in food clubs and 100 boys in livestock clubs, calves, pigs and poultry.

The Greene County Fair has provided $900 in prize money for this department. In addition to these prizes, a number of business men contributed money which will be used in sending winning demonstration teams to the Ohio State Fair.

Music will be furnished during the week by the Osborn Community Band, which will play Wednesday, the Xenia Municipal Band, Thursday, and the New Burlington Community Band, Friday.

The F. E. Goodrich Co. will have charge of the amusement rides at the fair. A. E. Staub, Tippicanoe City, will start the horses for the races.

Due women of the Methodist Church, Port William, have charge of the dining hall. Mrs. Mattie Smith is again in charge of the W. C. T. U. building. Articles may be checked there, drinking cups obtained and public telephone service and other conveniences are provided, including a rest room and an emergency room.

In the Greene County 4-H Club Exhibits, there are 450 boys and girls enrolled in thirty organized groups, every township having one or more organized groups.

Clothing Club exhibits were judged Monday and Tuesday and the garments are on display in the Arts Hall. Food Club exhibits will be judged Wednesday. Each member exhibiting a poster illustrating part of the club project.

Dairy calves, pigs and poultry will be judged Wednesday and beef calves Thursday morning. Demonstration teams competing for trips to the state fair will demonstrate Thursday morning in the tent housing the county health nurses exhibit.

The big live stock parade is scheduled for Friday at 12 o'clock. All the live stock exhibits will pass in review before the grandstand. Following this will be the float parade.

ATTORNEYS APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Seeking reversal of the action of the Court of Appeals in upholding the jury verdict which awarded $15,000 to J. Carl Marshall and L. T. Marshall, Xenia attorneys, Attorney G. E. Kreitzer, Dayton, as counsel for Wilbur E. and Alfred M. Wolf, Dayton attorneys, filed an appeal Wednesday in the Ohio Supreme Court at Columbus, on behalf of the Wolfs, who were defendants in an action brought by the Xenia lawyers two years ago to collect $15,000 for services rendered.

The Xenia law firm claimed that it was employed under a written contract to settle up an estate involving real estate valued at $100,000. When payment for this service was refused, the Xenia lawyers brought suit in Dayton and received a favorable jury verdict a year ago. The verdict was later affirmed by the appellate court.

Pleasant Life Of Show-Boat Troupe Fascinates Actors Writer Finds.

ON BOARD AN OHIO RIVER SHOW BOAT, Aug. 1.—Come on, folks, let's attend a performance on the Broadway Jones.

The Broadway Jones, a showboat, is a floating stage. It is a pleasure boat with a stage and a band. It is a floating stage. It is a pleasure boat with a stage and a band.

A rollicking New Year's party is in progress on the fair-sized stage. What matter if there are only a few folks?

At the end of the first act Captain Billy and the juvenile lead make up a vaudeville specialty, for river audiences like their amusement to be continuous.

Between the second and third acts Mrs. Bryant plays a saxophone solo, and her small daughter, Betty, sings and dances. Although she's only five, Betty's a veteran troupier—been acting since she was able to walk.

At night she's a serious young actress, but in the daytime you'll find her on the bank, making mud pies with village youngsters, or strolling up town with her mother—a tin duck, her pet, waddling behind them.

GOVERNOR AL SMITH ENDS VACATION TO PREPARE CAMPAIGN

Conference With Raskob Planned On Board Yacht

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Governor Al Smith today was to forsake swimming in Long Island waters to get back in the swim of the presidential campaign.

Having enjoyed a five day's rest at Canoe Place Inn, seven miles from here, the governor planned to motor to New York this afternoon where he is expected to have several conferences with John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic committee, before returning to Albany on Sunday. One of these conferences with Raskob may take place tomorrow aboard the yacht of William H. Todd, one of the governor's millionaire friends.

As soon as he returns to the capital, the governor will dispose of state business that has piled up during his brief absence and then settle down to whip into final shape the address he will deliver on August 22, when he is to be formally notified of the presidential nomination. He hopes to complete work on his acceptance speech by the middle of the month so he will have an opportunity to get another brief vacation, possibly in the Adirondacks before the nomination.

While the governor never has enjoyed better health than at present, members of his family and his close friends have advised him to get all the rest he can between now and the first part of September when he will launch his active campaign.

One of the first decisions which the governor is expected to make upon his return to Albany, is whether Senator Key Pittman of Nevada will act in the dual capacity at the notification ceremony of formally notifying the governor of his nomination and also presiding as chairman. It is understood the governor may decide to invite Franklin D. Roosevelt, who placed him in nomination at the Houston convention, to preside at the notification meet.

While here on his vacation the governor had refused to comment on the recent attack made on him by William Allen White, Kansas editor, but he has indicated that a reply may be expected in the near future. He smiled when he learned that White had retracted that part of his attack which charged him with voting to protect vice and gambling when he was a young Tammany assemblyman.

Hero's Kin Sues

Court action has again brought in review the tempestuous life of General Sam Houston, hero of the battle of San Jacinto, and president of the early republic of Texas. Mrs. Temple Houston, of Wichita Falls, Tex., widow of the general's son, has brought a libel suit against a magazine for printing statements about his parents which she brands untrue. She is joined in the suit by her three sons and daughters.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Louis Meyerson, 40, was shot and killed early today as he lay in bed. His wife, Rebecca, told police he was killed by one of two intruders who were young and swarthy.

Two straw hats, left by the murderers in their flight, furnished the only clues. Mrs. Meyerson said her husband had no enemies.

War Ace Is Killed

When his plane crashed at Providence, R. I., during an air meet, Clifton Thompson, Lafayette Escadrille ace, burned to death before the eyes of his bride a few months. Osmond Mather, of Hartford, Conn., also met death in the crash.

PRESIDENT CLOSES FIFTH WHITE HOUSE YEAR ON THURSDAY

Coolidge Greatly Improved In Health From Vacation

SUPERIOR, WIS., Aug. 1.—Tomorrow, Calvin Coolidge will bring to a close his fifth year in the White House. He will spend the day quietly, fishing the Bruie River nearby Cedar Island Lodge, happy in the thought he has but seven months more to spend at the exacting job of chief executive of the nation.

At least so his confidants say as to the latter. Those members of the executive staff attached to the summer White House detail who are closest to him say that the final acceptance of his decision not to run again and the subsequent nomination of Herbert Hoover have lifted years from him in action and appearance.

It is certain that the month and a half on the Bruie River thus far has worked wonders physically on the President. When he arrived on the 15th of June he seemed underweight. His complexion was pasty and he seemed tired almost to the point of exhaustion. Six weeks of constant fishing and how-door life on the Pierce estate, however, obviously have put him back on his feet, so to speak. He again tips the scales at his usual 158-160 weight; the sun and wind have tanned his face, and the lines of fatigue are almost wholly disappeared.

A year ago tomorrow, Mr. Coolidge electrified a dozen newspaper men, and very shortly thereafter the whole country, by handing out in Rapid City, S. D., a little type-written slip saying merely: "I do not choose to run in 1928." From that date on, right up to the Republican National Convention at Kansas City last June, the thought persisted he was not, sincere—that he could be "drafted."

Two Draw Fines. Pleading guilty to charges of intoxication, John Stewart and Susie Smith, both colored, were each fined $10 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning.

They were arrested at the John Barnett saw mill shortly after midnight Tuesday by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and J. E. Craig. The pair may be committed to the County Jail.

FIRST PLANE TAKES OFF AT CLEVELAND; DAYTON IS SERVED

Postmasters To Fly To Cleveland To Celebrate Line

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1.—The first air mail plane to pass through here on the Cleveland-Louisville route beginning operation today, departed from the Columbus airport at 6:25 a. m. this morning. It was a southbound plane with Pilot William F. McConnell at the controls. Three bags of mail were deposited and the same number taken aboard.

Pilot McConnell landed at 6:22 a. m. and took off again as soon as the mail could be loaded. The second southbound plane is due here from Cleveland at 7:45 a. m. The air mail planes will stop at Dayton and Cincinnati in addition to Columbus.

The Cleveland-Louisville air mail route is known as "No. 16," and is operated on contract by the Continental Air Lines, Inc., of Cincinnati.

Simultaneously with the inauguration today of the new air mail route, the reduced postage rates go into effect. First class matter may now be sent at five cents for the first ounce and ten cents for each additional ounce regardless of distance, as compared with the ten-cent rate for first class matter.

It was announced here that Postmaster Fred H. Tibbets, will fly to Cleveland tonight with the first northbound air mail plane in a trimotored Ford craft, accompanying the air mail. Aboard the Ford craft will be postmasters from Louisville, Cincinnati, Dayton and Akron as well as Tibbets. All are to be the guests of a dinner given by Postmaster H. A. Taylor of Cleveland.

WOMAN INJURED AS AUTO STRIKES HAY WAGON ALONG PIKE

Mrs. Ralph Cooder, Dayton, Sustains Broken Ribs

Mrs. Ralph Cooder, 30, 630 Wayne Ave., Dayton, O., suffered broken ribs and three other injuries when the auto crashed into the rear of a hay wagon driven by William Bone, Dayton Pike, just outside the Xenia city limits on the Dayton Pike at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

The roadster, traveling toward Dayton, smashed into the wagon while attempting to pass another car. The roadster overturned and the wagon was damaged.

Bone, who was standing up driving the team of horses, was thrown into the wagon and slightly injured.

The roadster was also occupied by Mrs. Cooder's husband, the latter's brother, Paul Cooder, Dayton, driver, and Frank Orr, 538 S. High St., Washington C. H., all of whom were unhurt.

The injured woman and her husband, were picked up by a passing motorist, and removed to McClellan Hospital here, where Mrs. Cooder's injuries were treated by Dr. A. C. Messenger. She was taken home half an hour later.

The occupants of the auto were returning to Dayton from Washington C. H. Bone was driving to his home on the Shoup farm on the Dayton Pike, half a mile north of this city.

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, investigated the accident. Bone refused to prosecute and no arrests were made.

SERIOUSLY ILL

George Brennan, Illinois Democratic political leader, is critically ill in a Chicago hospital on the eve of one of the biggest campaigns of his career.

NUN DENIES CHARGE OF PLOTTING DEATH OF ALVARO OBREGON

Remains Calm While Slayer Denies He Was Influenced

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 1.—Despite the fact that Jose de Leon Toral, the young assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, reluctantly admitted at his preliminary court examination that he had been "indirectly influenced" in his determination to slay Gen. Obregon by conception Acevedo De La Lata, Mother Superior of Espina Santo Convent, the nun remained impassively calm today, reiterating her denial of guilt.

The preliminary court inquiry, which is being conducted by Judge Alonzo Aznar Mendoza has placed the following three persons in chief roles of Mexico's latest political melodrama:

Toral, 27 year old religious fanatic, who calmly confessed the killing.

Mother Superior De La Lata, who denies any guilt whatsoever.

Manuel Trejo, labor leader, and former government employee, who is accused by the police of having furnished the pistol with which Gen. Obregon was shot to death on July 17.

Toral and the nun, who are under arrest, are stoical and face the future with the utmost calmness. Trejo is missing and is believed to have escaped to the United States.

For many hours Toral underwent relentless questioning by the grilling today. It is expected that the formal accusation of murder will be lodged against him tomorrow. In the Mexican courts this is equivalent to a grand jury true bill in United States criminal procedure.

Toral has sat through the proceedings impassively, at times seemingly annoyed by the questions.

"It was all very simple; any one could understand it," he repeated several times.

It is the contention of the prosecution that Toral was influenced to commit the crime by a conversation he had with Mother Superior Concepcion several days before the shooting. Toral stoutly maintains that no one but himself knew of his plan to kill the president-elect.

The nun is apparently a woman of superior intellectuality. She is about 45 years old, self possessed and stately in appearance. She told newspaper correspondents she faces the future with calmness.

Aside from the preliminary court inquiry Gen. Antonio Zertuche, chief of police for the federal district, is continuing his own investigation. Evidently he is not satisfied that Toral acted alone. He is determined to ascertain if a plot existed and if so to learn the identity of the ringleaders.

Toral was given no help in this direction. He says he knew of no plot and acted because he was actuated by "heavenly motives." He said he feels he committed no sin and that the killing of Gen. Obregon "will not prevent him from going to heaven."

The most tragic figure at the hearing is Toral's young wife. She is a destitute already. She is the mother of two children and expects to become a mother again. For the time being she is living on the bounty of relatives.

SPANISH AVIATORS TO CROSS ATLANTIC WESTWARD ON TRIP

Huge Hydroplane Used By Flyers In Daring Effort

CADIZ, Spain, Aug. 1.—Bound for the Azores in the first leg of a projected round-the-world flight, Commander Ramon Franco, famous Spanish aviator, hopped off from here at 7:30 a. m. today (3:30 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time), in a huge Dornier-Supervall hydroplane, the Numancia.

Franco was accompanied by Captains Ruiz De Alda and Galarza, of the Spanish Royal Flying Force and a civilian mechanic, Pablo Rada.

Radiograms received throughout the morning said the Numancia was proceeding without incident. The plane was in touch with stations in the Azores and Lisbon, the location being indicated through the radiogoniometer.

The start of the flight today followed months of intensive preparation. The hydroplane was assembled here by German mechanics and then put through severe tests. It was fitted with four Napier engines of 600 horsepower each and is said to be capable of maintaining an average speed of 125 miles an hour under ordinary conditions.

The Numancia has a wing-spread of ninety-five feet and is of all-metal construction. It weighs 13,000 pounds when empty and is capable of carrying a load of 8,000 pounds. Its fuel capacity exceeds 2,000 gallons, giving it a cruising radius of about 2,500 miles.

According to tentative plans announced before the start of the flight, Franco intends to fly to Halifax after reaching the Azores. From Halifax, Franco will fly down the Atlantic coast to Havana, stopping at New York on the way down.

From Havana, he will fly to Mexico City, then up the Pacific coast to Alaska, across the Bering sea, down the coast of Siberia and Manchuria to Japan, thence to the Philippines, Burma, India and Persia in turn and across Europe back to Spain. Suitable stops will be made enroute.

Two years ago, Franco successfully spanned the South Atlantic from Europe to South America for the first time. Ruiz de Alda and Rada accompanied him on that flight also. Galarza won fame as an aviator in 1926 when he flew from Spain to Manila.

ANTI-SALOON BODY TO ACT SEPARATELY DURING CAMPAIGN

Sees Prospects For Election Of Dry Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Anti-Saloon League of America, supporting Herbert Hoover for the presidency, will wage its campaign entirely aloof from the Republican party, General Superintendent F. Scott McBride said on his return here today from a survey of five states.

The dry league is raising its own campaign funds with a maximum of $500,000 authorized—and will support proved facts for congress regardless of party affiliations.

The campaign to defeat Governor Alfred E. Smith is already under way, but will not reach full tide until early in September.

Coupled with this explanation of the League's plan of operations in the political war, Dr. McBride declared that if 90 per cent of the church vote is cast, Hoover will be elected.

"On the other hand," he said, "it is fully realized that if the dries in the churches are inactive and indifferent, the aggressive wet interests will be able to place Smith in the White House."

McBride declared that during his trip he found dries aroused in Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia.

He offered a prediction that a "very dry" congress will emerge from the November elections.

The prediction was made without regard to whether it would encourage Democratic dries to vote for Smith in the belief that a dry congress would "banish" him or whether it might convince Republican wets that it would be a futile thing to desert Hoover in the vain hope of bringing back beer.

At present, McBride said, the senate shows 74 per cent dry among the Republicans and 71 per cent dry among the Democrats, while the house as a whole is 75 per cent dry.

When 10 Miles Per Hour Was Considered Speeding

THERE was a day when speed cops rode bicycles—
There was a day when gay dogs in yellow dusters endangered human life “scorching” along the road at ten miles per hour—

There was a day when every parlor had a “what-not” filled with “what-nots”—

Many Xenians can recall the not-far distant day of the red-plush album in the parlor, the wire rack for picture post-cards, the glass case with its artificial flowers, the inevitable stereoscope on the marble-topped table and perhaps the early, squeaking phonograph with its horn built like a huge morning glory and its group of cylinder records.

These days are not far away in Xenia—not far away any where in this great, big, hurly-burly country, where changes are effected so quickly that they form a kaleidoscope of changing patterns of a nation's progress.

Those were lazy days—summers of fanning on the front porch or hitching up the horse and carriage for a picnic outing at Neff Park; winters of sitting around the base-burner in the parlor reading the almanac enlivened by an occasional bob-sled ride or a visit of “Uncle Tom's Cabin” to the Opera House.

Merchandising in those days was also a simplified problem. Xenia was established here as a convenience to the surrounding countryside and merchants established themselves here because the countryside took advantage of this convenience.

There was little question of competition because the transportation problem involved in going elsewhere for merchandise was insurmountable usually under the prevailing conditions. The merchant dozed in the back of his store relying on the bell fastened to the front door to announce the arrival of a customer. It wasn't greatly a question of choice with the customer—it was a question of getting what you could.

Lots of things brought about a change in this old order, but perhaps the automobile was a greater contributor to the revolution of things as they were.

At first denounced as dangerous they were later accepted as “foolishness” until it dawned upon the small town merchant that here was both a boon and a bane. The auto so revolutionized travel that the customer found he could be choicy about his merchandise. It brought the merchandise of other cities within reach even as it made it possible for more frequent trips to the stores and improved delivery of the home-town merchant.

The Xenia merchant suddenly found himself on a competitive footing with merchants in Dayton, Springfield, Cincinnati, Columbus and elsewhere. He realized that to meet this competition he must present merchandise comparable in quality, quantity and style and he immediately took advantage of the fact that rental variations made it possible for him to do this and still under-cut the city merchant in price.

Because Xenia merchants were quick to sense this change in commercial conditions, Xenia has survived where other cities, comparable in size, have been retarded to the point of dissolution. Xenia merchants improved their stores, freshened their stocks, began to emphasize store service, made an earnest bid for the business that would have gone elsewhere. The stores that now stand as monuments to Xenia business, which compare favorably with those of cities much larger, prove the success of the experiment.

The automobile wrought a change here and Xenia's buying public has reaped the harvest. Xenians who have watched the transformation feel certain that should the airplane be responsible for a similar evolution in merchandising, Xenia merchants will be among those benefited and not among those damaged by the change.

About forty friends and relatives enjoyed a bounteous picnic Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Creamer, three miles east of Jamestown. Those participating were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shelley, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. William Crone and son, Billy, Columbus; Miss Dorothy Cook, Springfield; Mrs. Ida Crone, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Charles Crone, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Downs and two sons, and Miss Altona Barr, Washington C. H.; Mrs. Alice Shelley, sons, Phillip and Harry, Sabina; Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Shelley, and Ralph Bandy, Jeffersonville; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shelley, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Shelley and three children, Milledgeville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Creamer, Gray, Hester and Richard Creamer, Margery Creamer Read and daughter, June and Miss Frances Toohy, Xenia, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Creamer and daughter, Betty Lu.

Clinton Adair, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Adair, is arriving home Wednesday night from Pittsburgh, Pa., where he has been spending three weeks.

CLIFTON

Mr. Frank Lloyd of Indianapolis, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Chas. Confar.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Sparrow of Springfield, was buried in Clifton cemetery last Saturday.

Mr. Peter Knott and the Misses Knott entertained last Sunday for the pleasure of their Florida guests, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Putnam, and daughter, Bet, Mrs. Anna Knott, Fried, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl K. Fried of Springfield, and Dr. Leo Anderson and family of Cedarville.

Rev. Dr. Henry Foster, of Salsville, O., occupied his old pulpit in the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath morning.

The Presbyterian Church has chosen Wednesday as its church day.

The Ladies' Aid Society will, according to the change, meet next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Elder Cory at her home on the Cedarville Pike.

Mrs. Nelson Clark returned to her home in Pittsburgh for a few days last Friday. She expects to return here on Monday.

Mrs. H. R. Corry and Mrs. Walter Corry entertained about thirty guests at the home of the latter Monday afternoon, for the pleasure of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Foster, of Salsville, Ohio, and Miss Janet Garlaugh, who soon returns to her work in California.

Zion Baptist Church held an outdoor basket meeting at Mr. Arthur Reed's grove Sunday with an attendance of several hundred. Rev. Mr. Smith of Xenia, preached.

Rev. J. G. C. Webster will have a month's vacation during August. Prof. Merle Rife, of Tarkio, Mo., will preach the first and third Sabbath at the U. P. Church. The church will close the second and fourth Sabbaths.

Mrs. Andrews, formerly Miss Vonda McCann of near London, O., was calling on acquaintances here last week.

Mr. Robert Collins is attending the National Y. P. C. U. convention at Conneaut Lake, Pa.

Mrs. David Bradfute is entertaining her parents and sister of near Leaman, O., this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Lee Rife and daughters, Jean and Charlotte, of Philadelphia, spent last week here on their way to Monmouth, Ill.

Misses Lela Estle and Mary Webster attended a shower given last Saturday by Mrs. McClellan Miss Ella St. John at the home of the latter, for her sister, Miss Ruth St. John.

The W. L. O. C. Boys' Poultry Club of Clifton will make an exhibit at the Greene Co. Fair this week.

Mrs. Earl Anderson and son Billy, of Colorado, are guests of Mrs. Frank Skillings.

Mrs. W. B. Corning will broadcast Wednesday evening, August 8, 7:30 o'clock, WGSO, Wittenberg-Springfield. Two Kreisler and two Schubert selections will be outstanding numbers on the program.

A play, "Mother Mine," will be given Saturday evening, August 11th, by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. high school clubs at Clifton Opera House.

Troop 45 will meet at the Scout Cabin Friday at 5 p. m., and take an overnight hike. Each Scout is asked to bring his mess kit, blankets and provisions for three meals.

The committee has arranged the hike to near Spring Valley, to the Compton farm. The troop will be in charge of Scoutmaster E. Blackburn, assistants, and the troop committee.

Stricken Girl Blames Self for Radium Poisoning

By SHIRLEY KIRKE
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

"ONE LIFE—a little gleam of time between two eternities."—Carlyle.

Five women in New Jersey have been doomed to death by radium poisoning. One, Miss Grace Fryer, has offered her body, after death, to science that data thus obtained may help save others.

But Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, New York toxicologist, made a more startling suggestion. He said:

"We need more than bodies of victims. What is vitally wanted is for one of these unfortunate young women now in

WILL LEAVE XENIA

E. P. Hamlin, production manager for the Hooven and Allison Co., has resigned his position and is leaving about August 15, for Kansas City, to enter other work. Mr. Hamlin has been associated with the Hooven and Allison Co., several years, coming to Xenia from Kansas City.

A successor to the office has not been named, it was announced Wednesday.

Never a Marcel Wave

By Edna Wallace Hopper
On the stage, in public and at private functions my hair always attracts. During my performances women never fail to ask the secret of my perfect wave and the youthful, lively sheen of my hair.

It is very simple. I wave my own hair. First I moisten it with my liquid hair-dress, Wave and Sheen. I use a comb to apply it. Then I carefully insert the combs. I do a piece of chiffon over my head. By the time I am ready to complete my toilette the waves are in to stay.

A radiant sheen, free from stickiness, is the chief charm of this simple method. Wave and Sheen is the only dressing I would use on my hair. It is the only preparation I know that does not give the "plastered" effect, which I cannot tolerate. The hair, must have air in order to be healthy and free from dandruff.

You can get a bottle of my Wave and Sheen at any toilet counter. It is guaranteed. 75 cents.—Adv.

the throes of the poisoning to undergo experiments."

That science may have the laboratory it requires in its quest of a cure of the dread disease, Katherine Schaub, of Newark, came forward with an offer of sacrifice far and beyond any other made. She proffered her living body for experiment.

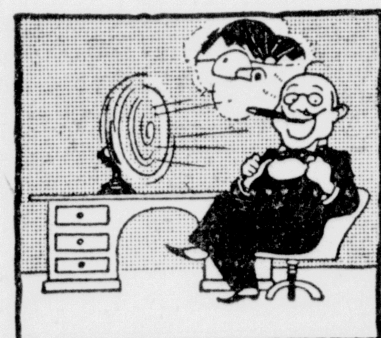

That the medical world no longer be helpless, Miss Schaub, who wants to live, though life has become a torment, is ready to hazard a hastened death. Others have willed their bodies to science.

Miss Schaub, like the American soldier in Cuba who gave his living form to the yellow fever germ and thus helped save mankind from the ravages of the disease, stands ready for the great sacrifice of letting science experiment with her while she breathes.

"I would like their assurance that their experiments would not hasten my death," she said in her home in Newark. "However, I am willing, with my fullest confidence in the doctors, to undergo experiments that may save the other girls. Life is sweet, and I would rather go along as I am now than die suddenly from an experiment that went wrong. All I ask, beyond assurance they will do their best to protect my life, is that they keep me in the sunshine."

There is a spiritual touch in her offer, for she finds an opportunity to assuage the pangs of recollection. It was as instructor in an Orange, N. J., watch factory that she directed other employees to touch radium-tipped brushes to their lips.

"I did not know it would harm them," she sighed. "I did it myself."

"Watch me rise to this occasion"—

says the thermometer, as the summer sun sends it climbing upward. "Watch me rise to this same occasion," you retort, and purchase yourself a Westinghouse Home Fan.

Though priced at only $16.50, this heat remover has the same features as the largest Westinghouse fan selling for twice its price. It gives utmost breeze for the power consumed. It is a full oscillator, and the oscillating mechanism is enclosed. Runs at three speeds—silently. In fact, it's the perfect home fan.

Library Notes

The County Library is planning a unique service to be extended patrons of the Greene County Fair. In accord with its policy of placing itself at the disposal of all who like to read, according to Miss Mildred Sandoe, librarian, there will be installed, in the Arts Hall, a miniature branch library and reading room, open for use to any who wish to take advantage of this opportunity to obtain interesting books for home reading.

All books will be available for home use. Books will be charged out for the regulation period of two weeks but there will be no no-borrower's cards produced, the librarian announces. Borrowers are asked, however to remember that all books drawn at the Fair Library are to be returned within the time limit to the Main Library.

A large map of Greene County, showing the extent and types of service given by the Greene County District Library will be given prominent display at the Library Booth at the Fair. This map shows the number and location of the schools served, as well as the location of library branches and deposit stations. The county librarian and other library workers will be in attendance on all Fair days and will be glad to explain the different phases of the work and to discuss the possibilities of extending the service to other communities.

A Warm Meal In a Cool Room

Summer meals are distressing problems to the housewife. Her effort is to provide tasty, wholesome food, but the oppressiveness of cooking over a stove saps the vitality and the ensuing heat and kitchen odors that pervade the entire house are, to say the least, discouraging.

Electric equipment solves her great summer problems in a manner that is cool, economical and efficient. Why not an electric range, grill, toaster, chafing dish and percolator—yes, and a fan, too.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OVERCOMING ENEMIES—If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink. For thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head, and the Lord shall reward thee.—Prov. 25:21, 22.

FLYING YACHT COMING NEXT

A German flying yacht is being tested in the Baltic. It is the first flying boat to be constructed with a keel like that of a ship, and to be designed with a primary view to seaworthiness.

This ship can fly, and fly fast and far. But besides that, it is claimed that it can battle out a major storm on the surface of the ocean.

The Germans, you see, are taking the matter of trans-oceanic flight seriously. It is a stunt to fly across a deep ocean in a machine that will sure go straight to the bottom if it has to alight on the water. It takes great courage to perform such a stunt. But if you are planning to go and get back with cargo or passengers, you must be able at least to keep afloat when you alight on rough water.

The Romar type of plane is designed for commercial flights between Europe and the Americas. It will fly 150 miles an hour, has three powerful motors, carries 2,000 gallons of fuel and 100 gallons of oil, in addition to a crew of five, a dozen passengers, and several tons of mail or freight. Loaded, the ship weighs twenty-five tons.

The Germans expect to use a fleet of these flying yachts for commerce and mail purposes between Germany and Argentina.

The Germans also are completing a dirigible that will presently make a little test flight around the world. This ship, and several of the same type, probably will be used in commerce between Germany and the South American republics.

In the world of trade, the fellow who can get the goods by enterprise and fair dealing is entitled to the profits. This German initiative and enterprise, carried on under great difficulties, demands our admiration.

But it demands, too, our competition.

What are we Americans doing about the South American trade? Are we going to let it all fly away to Europe? Political influence follows commercial prestige.

SETTLED ONCE MORE

Again a competent court formally confirms the notable fact that the Wright brothers invented the airplane. The United States Court of Claims dismisses a long-standing suit against Orville Wright by the heirs of a Californian who experimented with gliders.

Also, a monument or marker is set up in the vicinity of Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, where the Wrights made the first flight with a motored machine carrying a man.

The question of the identity of the inventors of the airplane should by this time be universally established so strongly that even the Smithsonian Institution will be able to see the light while there remains a chance to get back for the United States the first flying machine, now in England.

POWER

Today, as you ride from Philadelphia to New York, you seem to be passing through towns all of the way. A similar situation is developing between Chicago and Milwaukee and Toledo and Detroit. Industries which once thought they had to be in the city are getting out. Super-power furnishes them with an abundance of power outside the congested districts. In the suburban areas the workers have better living conditions and reduced expenses. When they want to go to the city the automobile furnishes speedy transportation.

Power is the key to many of the developments in the world today. Don't underestimate its significance.

NEWSPAPERS

If you are interested in newspaper work, hunt up the biography of William Thomas Arnold, formerly of the Manchester Guardian. Arnold's biographer is C. E. Montague.

Arnold believed that there is no limit to what a man can do who does not care who gains the credit for it.

"No one was surer that a man had better sweep streets well than write with nothing more to go upon than volubility, brisk ways of putting things, quickness in reading up briefs and a turn for being in a heat once about things that heat others," writes Montague of Arnold.

"First, the editor must think of his paper not as a springboard or a crutch for his own use, nor as a hoarding for the posters of a party, but as an instrument of civilization that he can spend his life in playing without fear of feeling, when he is dying, that he has been parasitic, either in the sense of having lived on popular imbecility or vulgarity, or only in that of having stood by, gossiping or nagging, while better men worked. There must be no uncritical assents, in politics, morals or criticism, to fashionable second bests, no yielding to foolish people of expression for their foolish thoughts."

Aspiring newspaper men will do well to re-read this paragraph. It is worth digesting carefully.

U. S. IS THE MODEL

They say Norway is becoming Americanized. The doctrine of the nobility of work and an equal opportunity for all is being spread by the letters which new arrivals in America write home. Strange, isn't it, how important an informal thing like a letter can be? Be careful about your letters. They, too, may have an effect which you didn't anticipate.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Ten years ago thousands of young men were living in the slimy trenches of France between dashes "over the top." Today the survivors are back here, trying to fit into the commercial structure of the city. They expect consideration when they ask for work. It is tragic that the very people for whom they risked their lives now

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The sections of the city which are of most interest to the majority of out-of-town visitors continue to be Greenwich Village, Harlem and Coney Island.

Greenwich Village is a legend that persists in defiance of reality. As a place of glamor, romance and that sort of thing, it is a myth like Chinatown. But it continues to attract the tourists. Novels in which life in the Village has been made to appear gloriously desirable, seemingly have been widely read and taken literally.

If there's any glamor about airless, hot attics and "apartments" consisting of a bedroom and a combination kitchen and bathroom, or no bathroom at all; and about "restaurants" in damp, smelly basements, childishly decorated, and about poseurs, sycophants, callow boys and girls living on doles from home and out-and-out deadbeats, then Greenwich Village has glamor.

There are men and women residents of the Village, who paint and sculpt and write and make a living at it, but they are not the stockless lassies with dirty necks and rouged boys who exhibit themselves in the various Village "rendezvous" that tourists are led to as meeting places of the great. What tourists usually see in the Village is other tourists and a lot of persons playing a humorless game of make-believe.

The only distinction the Village has in these days is that it has the largest number of wide-open speakeasies.

A Broadway comedian may rightly take credit for picking the new chairman of the Democratic national committee. John J. Raskob, boss of General Motors, was a Republican until Eddie Dowling, actor, one of his friends, introduced him to Governor Al Smith at a chance meeting in a hotel. The acquaintance thus made grew into a friendship which caused Raskob to switch his political allegiance to Smith and to interest himself in politics to such an extent that he was chosen by the governor for national chairman.

No president of the United States ever has been an actor as a close friend and pal, although President Coolidge's liking for Al Jolson is credited with being responsible for the latter's success in getting Earl (Champagne Bath) Carroll, producer, freed from Atlanta prison. Dowling is an intimate of the governor, and frequent house guest in the executive mansion at Albany, along with Ray Dooley, his wife, likewise a stage funmaker.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee, is in the Social Directory. Neither is Herbert Hoover. So I feel less badly about not being mentioned.

It is a matter of fact that actresses were barred from Bailey's Beach, bathing place of the ultra-smart at Newport, because they were more popular with the men than the blue-blooded debutantes and dowagers.

Delicious Sweetbreads
Scalloped Potatoes
Cucumber Salad with Sour Cream Dressing
Never Fail Devil Food Cake
Sliced Peaches Tea

Sweetbreads are something that many people do not know how to use in home cooking. We eat them only when they are served at the hotel or restaurant. Below is given one method of cooking.

Today's Recipes

Cucumber Salad Dressing—One half pint thick sour cream whipped until foamy, then add one-eighth teaspoon salt, tablespoon sugar and two tablespoons vinegar. (More or less according to your vinegar.) Mix well and place in refrigerator. Peel cucumber and place on ice about five minutes before dinner. Slice cucumber and white onion in sour cream serve on crisp lettuce and sprinkle with paprika. This dressing is also delicious over shredded lettuce garnished with hard boiled eggs or chopped cabbage.

Delicious Sweetbreads—Soak sweetbreads in salt water for one-half hour, then dry and skin them; dip each piece in flour and fry until a rich brown, then season and add one-half cup boiling water. Cover and steam for twenty minutes or half hour.

Never Fail Devil Food Cake—One and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup shortening, two-thirds cup cocoa (melted), one egg and one yolk (save one white for icing), pinch salt, one cup sour cream, one teaspoon vanilla, about two cups pastry flour. Mix in order given and bake in two layers. Put together with the following frosting: three eggs whites (beaten stiff), one box XXXX sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, four tablespoons melted butter. Use the two egg yolks to make salad dressing.

PECAN NUT WAFERS (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Beat two eggs without separating the whites and yolks, beat in one cup sifted brown sugar, one teaspoon vanilla extract and three heaping tablespoons flour sifted with one-fourth teaspoon each of salt and baking powder. Lastly beat in a cup of pecan meats broken in small bits. Spread the mixture on buttered baking sheets or drop a spoonful three inches apart, decorate with whole nut meats and bake in moderate oven

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Summer Aids to Beauty

If I were asked to name the first essential to summer beauty I should answer unhesitatingly "daintiness."

I know of no attribute so essential, so much to be desired, so often neglected.

The fresh, cool frocks which through the avenues of fashion these bright days, are all created with an eye to establishing an idea of exquisite coolness and refreshing daintiness for the wearer to profit by.

But there are precautions which every woman can, and should take. The first of these is to prevent that distressing area of wetness and discoloration which figures the underarm of a pretty gown. The general use of a deodorant which stops the perspiration is bad. There are no two ways about it, you cannot stop up any of the natural excretory glands without playing with fire. But I do believe that on the sultry, humid days of July and August it is a permissible and sensible precaution to use a deodorant which will offset this unpleasantness.

Bath talcum, particularly if it is deodorant, is another summer aid to loveliness, which the clever woman will not minimize. Boric acid dusted under the arms is another mild deodorant.

Freckles and tan, the bane of summer beauty, will not trouble you if you take the precaution of wearing a hat every time you venture out of doors.

People in the country have no conception of the really terrific power of the sun. I cannot tell you how it distresses me to see little children playing all day under the almost direct rays of the summer sun, with absolutely no protection.

If you had seen, as I have, countries where the power of the sun's rays is so tremendous that it shrivels not only flesh, but bone and muscle as well, you would not neglect any precaution against a sudden heat stroke, brain fever and all the other calamities that occur not half so infrequently as you imagine.

There is one spot in South Africa where the sun's rays are so powerful that the natives have to resort to wool strips to safeguard their spines, for the sun shrivels up the marrow in their bones. Of course, I am not drawing comparisons but I am cautioning you against criminal carelessness, either against yourself or your children these wearing days.

Beware, too, of the eye-shades introduced as safeguards on the tennis courts. While they protect the eyes, they leave the top of the head completely exposed, a very bad and dangerous thing.

A light straw hat with a narrow brim is a perfect covering for summer, and one which you will find no discomfort in.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

I was talking with Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck & Company, when he remarked that he had not bought a pair of shoes in several years—said he just had to have a pair of shoes and hadn't worn them out.

Then we discussed needless buying, just for the sake of being fashionable, and Rosenwald confided to me further that he had not driving the same automobile for 10 years.

Though one or the world's greatest merchants, and one of the most generous of men, sometimes goes away as much as a million dollars at a time, Rosenwald is opposed to buying anything that one doesn't need.

MIMICS

A Londoner was hurrying along the embankment to keep an appointment for which he was already late. He was stopped by a party of Americans, one of whom asked courteously if he would point out Cleopatra's Needle.

"Why, certainly," responded the Londoner; "it's just here." He indicated the famous obelisk and at the same time removed his hat to wipe his brow. Whereupon the Americans also uncovered and gazed at the Needle with reverence.

What Came of Missing Somebody Else's Business

"The merry sparkle in the little bird's eyes faded. The happy trill in his voice was gone. The feathers rose on his little head. Sparkle-Tail was offended at what Mrs. Bobolink had said.

"Say, what business is it of yours where I build my nest? Who are you to scold me for placing it as a trap for ugly old spilling? I am Sparkle-Tail, the humming bird of Mexico and I know my trade, I tell you. I am doing just as my ancestors have done for generations and I'll take no impertinent strangers to take me to task for it! The very idea of your poking your beak into my business! I will not fly away—you might harm my eggs—but another word do you get out of me if you hang around here all day. And if you take my advice you will fly away. It is not good manners to stay where you are not wanted."

Down upon the nest plunged the little bird, and true to his word he never opened his beak again, although I asked him several questions.

Silence for I don't know how many miles when I heard wife give a startled exclamation.

Needless to say, one who has bladder troubles should have the treatment personally supervised by a competent physician.

FEATURES

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

"No one who buys bootleg whisky can complain of gunmen and hoodlumism."

—Herbert Hoover.

WASHINGTON — Herbert Hoover has not a reputation as a coiner of apt phrases.

That he can deal ably and exhaustively with a big subject is not questioned, I guess, but I never heard him touted as an expert at putting a lot into one compact little sentence that rings the bell.

Tom Marshall's "What this country needs is a good 5-cent cigar" is the classical example of it.

Yet Hoover is one of our foremost statesmen at that sort of thing, when you come to investigate.

He wrote a book half a dozen years ago, called "American Individualism."

It is a small book—about two newspaper columns, spread out. But I will bet that little volume, assayed, would show a higher percentage of first-class wise-cracks, page for page than any other literary work by a presidential candidate in recent years.

Listen to a few—
"Many people confuse the exposure of wrongs which were below the surface with degeneration; their very exposure is progress."

"A considerable experience leads me to the conviction that while we Americans do wash our dirty linen in public, most others never wash it."

"Production can only be maintained at high pitch if there is a fair division of the product; fair division can only be obtained by restrictions on the strong and dominant."

"The will-o'-the-wisp of socialism is that it contemplates a motivation of human animals by altruism alone; the will-o'-the-wisp of autocracy is that it supposes the Lord endowed a special class with all the divine attributes."

"We can make a social system as perfect as our generation merits."

You may not agree with all this but it is pithy and pungent—what I mean.

I doubt if Hoover's little book has been much read.

He wrote it when he was not presidentially prominent as he now, and today I imagine it pretty well forgotten that he ever did write it. I only ran across myself by accident.

At the risk of being suspected of trying to boost it, as a bookseller, I call attention to it, because it gives us a slant on Hoover that it is difficult to get otherwise.

It is not popular fiction, I admit.

At that, it is a curiosity—a 5 by 7-inch treatise on government, less than half an inch thick, covers it all.

Compare that with Plato, Machiavelli, Locke, Hobbes, Guizot, John Stuart Mill, Bagehot and Lord Bryce on the same subject!—in heaven knows how many ponderous tomes!—and then say that Herbert Hoover cannot pack his ideas small!

The trouble with Hoover, as a politician, is—

Apt phrases do not ripple from his lips with the same facility that they flow from his pen.

If he can catch the trick of getting them off impromptu, as well as he can do it in a book, he will not have to take a back seat in comparison with the niftiest oratorical sharp-shooter in the land.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Needs Her Love

There are many people in the world who are handicapped in some way. Sometimes it is a physical handicap, sometimes one of circumstance. It is amazing and inspiring that these persons so often achieve great success. In all such instances love may help win the battle, love may give an incentive and faith in oneself.

A young girl has written me asking whether she shall marry a young man whom she evidently loves, but who is slightly crippled.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 21, and have been going with a fellow two years my senior who was crippled when a young boy in an automobile accident, which left his one shoulder a little stuck out in the back, making it look sort of humpback. He has asked me to marry him and my parents think I should not marry a cripple like him.

"He is good looking, has a good job, works every day and has a wonderful disposition. He says he loves me and I have no reason to doubt it. I like him very well, as his personality is wonderful and also he is a wonderful trombone player, but will not play in an orchestra because of his deformity. Please, Mrs. Lee, advise me, as I am in great distress to know if people would think I should marry a man in this condition."

"BLUE EYES."

If you love him, Blue Eyes, I see no reason why you should not marry him, and help him to overcome his sensitiveness on the subject. So many men are much more handicapped than he, and I were you I would incur no risk to play in an orchestra if he wanted to. People may be unkind some ways, but they are very hearted when they see a person cheerfully overcoming a fortune, and will always give encouragement. I should marry him.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: My problems are not very big ones, but I should like your advice. I am a 17-year-old brunette of average good looks. I met a young man seven years my senior about a year and a half ago. No, I didn't fall at his feet and worship, but he fulfilled every requirement of my 'dream man,' and I finally awoke to the fact that I loved him as much as he declared he loves me.

We have many interests in common, so I have been going with him steadily since I first met him, and we intend to be married in about three years, although we are not formally engaged. Now here are my problems: 1—He has gone to another city to work and promised to write every day, but two and three days pass sometimes without a letter, but when one comes it is so happy. No, I don't blame him for I know he hates to write a letter, but should I write regularly or wait for him to write? 2—Would it be wrong for me to entertain an old boy friend who is also a friend of the family and whom I have not seen for nearly three years, knowing that HE would rather I didn't, I talked it over with him and he said I could do as I liked, but he didn't think it looked right. This other boy is no more to me than a good friend. 3—Can you love a person with all your heart and yet quarrel occasionally and see their faults?"

"PUZZLED."

Answer to 1, I think I'd write regularly as a general thing, but occasionally, if he gets remiss, let him see how it seems to miss a few. I think you should entertain your old friend. You owe him something as well as your fiancé (or pseudo-fiancé). As long as you have explained matters he should trust you. He would probably expect to be allowed to entertain an old girl friend without objection from you. Most lovers quarrel occasionally and make up and in spite of the old adage love is not always blind, and one can love with "all their heart" and still see that the loved one is no perfect.

ALIMONY-SEEKING WIFE!

There is a large class of divorced women in America who, in spite of what charges they may make in court, really get their decrees for the sake of alimony. If you'll take the word of Fannie Hurst, the novelist for it.

"It is surprising to see how placidly society in this country countenances the alimony-seeking woman." Miss Hurst is quoted in The Golden Boy. "She is socially accepted as well within her rights. Probably she is within her economic rights. Certainly her spiritual rights would seem to be not worth having."

not see when his feet touched the ground) yet not a bit of headway did that bird make for, instead of starting off and running in a straight line away from the man and danger, he ran around and around exactly as if he were caught in a trap and there was no way of escape.

HUDSON-ESSEX ARE VICTORS OVER LANG

The Hudson-Essex softball team defeated the Lang Chevrolet Co. 11 to 9 in the first half of a scheduled double-header in the American League Tuesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic field.

The first game was limited to seven innings by agreement and the aftermath was called in the third inning because of darkness.

Wet grounds and rain made conditions unfavorable for softball and airtight playing was next to impossible.

The victory strengthened the position of the Hudson-Essex in second place, one full game behind the league-leading Carroll-Blinder Co. nine.

The Firemen will meet the Phil Deltis in a National League game Wednesday night.

Plan G. O. P. Bolt

J. M. O'Hara, organization manager for insurgent Texas Republicans, and W. M. McDonald, below, political leader of Texas negroes, both of Fort Worth, have declared they will bolt the Republican party and vote for Governor Alfred E. Smith for president. A committee organized by O'Hara for an uninstructed delegation to the national Republican convention was denied seats at the state Republican convention.

"Get All You Can, Give All You Can," John D.'s Motto

Rounding Corner of 89, His Philosophy the Same as at 60

By GRAHAM STEWART
International Illustrated News Staff Writer

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Sr., is one of the richest men in America—and one of the sanest. When he turned the corner of his eighty-ninth birthday he celebrated the event according to long-established custom. The immediate members of his family gathered at Pocantico Hills, certain cronies dropped in and a few neighbors called and extended their congratulations.

To these the Oil King repeated a piece of philosophy that he had promulgated at sixty.

"I believe it is a religious duty to get all of the money you can, fairly and honestly, to keep all you can and give away all you can."

The simplicity of it is amazing. But no more incredible than the senior Rockefeller's efficiency in other things. Friends recall that when he began building his Pocantico Hills mansion he put the sun to "work" for him. He demanded four things in his expensive home—light and air, beauty and comfort. In order to make sure of obtaining sunlight in his favorite rooms at such hours as he needed it, he ordered a small, boxlike structure to be built and placed upon a turntable in the exact center of his site. Ingeniously arranged mechanism made it possible for Mr. Rockefeller to seat himself in this "cage" and turn it about by means of levers. After weeks of experimenting he composed a timetable showing at which hour the sun would shine into each room of his new home.

Reminder of Good Old Days

JOE WALCOTT BILLY VAN
(International Illustrated News)

BACK in the old days of fistiana, there were no big purses and a man could give a lousy wallop.

Remember when Nelson, Britt, Wolgast, McGovern and Walcott were "knocking 'em cold." It's over a quarter of a century ago, before the advent of the boxing commissions.

Joe Walcott, "The Barbados Demon," was the best of his class and welter champ from 1895-1902.

WASHINGTON.—While Herbert Hoover hibernates in his beautiful Palo Alto, Cal., home, awaiting official notification of his selection as Republican standard bearer, and Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, sticks to his knitting in the State House at Albany, a new—and curiously disturbing—factor has arisen

FILLING STATION ATTENDANT ROBBED BY ARMED AUTOISTS

County authorities are searching for two men who drove up in an auto to the new barbecue lunch room and filling station on the Columbus Pike, half a mile east of Xenia at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, bought ten gallons of gasoline and half a gallon of oil and then sped away without paying after keeping the attendant at bay with a revolver.

The two strangers were seated in the front seat and did not get out of the car. After the gas tank had been filled by George Greer, Zimmerman, who jointly operates the barbecue with Russell Muterspaw, Xenia, the companion of the driver drew a revolver and pointed it at Greer.

While Greer was covered with the weapon, the driver started the car and the two drove away in the direction of Cedarville. Greer and Frederick Smith, who was standing nearby, were described as being about middle age.

Muterspaw and Greer opened up the new barbecue lunch room last Saturday. The incident was reported to the sheriff's office.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, SR.

For instance, he wanted light in his dining room in the morning and again at night. The only time he insisted upon light in his den, or office, was between three and four in the afternoon. His bedroom he wanted dark between at certain hours of the day. "Sun dial" house was built accordingly and architects consider it a model of planning.

Since he has settled to a tranquil routine of golf and quiet philanthropy, the president emeritus of Standard Oil has passed his winters at Ormond Beach, Fla., his Spring season at Lakewood and the long days of summer on his 6,000-acre Pocantico Hills estate. Thus at eighty-nine he is still able to enjoy the elusive exercise of swinging at a golf ball, and although his diet is restricted he still has a good deal of latitude in choosing his meals.

It Was Only Done Once, Gene

Poor old Jim Jeffries couldn't stay "retired" when Rickard jingled $100,000 under his nose, and was kayoed by Jack Johnson in fifteen rounds.

Will handsome Gene show more strength of will than did the massive Californian? Mebby so, but old John W. Ringside is skeptical.

Personalities IN SPORT

RAY SCHALK

Raymond W. Schalk, dean of American league catchers, and recently resigned manager of the Chicago White Sox, was born at Harvel, Ill., Aug. 12, 1892.

Schalk broke into baseball with the Taylorville club in the old I-M league in 1911, and was grabbed the same year by Milwaukee.

Cracker, as Ray became known to baseball men, remained with Milwaukee one season, when he was taken on by the White Sox, and has since remained with that club.

Schalk remained true to his club when several of his teammates cooked the 1919 world series, and probably as a reward for his faithfulness, late in 1923 was given the managership of the club.

Despite great expenditures for players, the White Sox failed to prosper under Ray's regime, and he quite in July of this year.

Schalk is the real veteran of big league catchers of today, having caught over 1,750 games in the big time.

HOME ANXIOUS TO ARRANGE CONTESTS

Re-organization of the O. S. and S. O. Home schools is nearly complete and the Home is anxious to schedule neighboring teams in athletics, according to an announcement by Christian E. Burckel, superintendent of schools.

The Home schools will open soon and the superintendent desires to arrange a series of football and basketball games for the athletic director for the coming season.

The athletic director has not yet assumed his duties.

PAIR FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE AFTER ONE RESISTS ARREST

Putting up a fight when police attempted to arrest him, Arthur Davis, 32, Charles St., was painfully but not seriously beaten about the head by Patrolman Charles Thompson before he was subdued late Tuesday night.

Davis and Edward Thompson, 32, a barber were arraigned before Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning for possessing liquor. Both pleaded guilty and were each fined $100 and costs. The pair may be committed to the County Jail.

Summoned to the site of the old Central High School building on

E. Market St., by complaints turned in by neighbors who had been awakened by the loud talking of the men Patrolmen Thompson and J. E. Craig found the pair quarreling.

Davis and Thompson had driven to the spot in an auto. After alighting from the machine, they began to quarrel.

The officers discovered two half pints of liquor, one of which was found in the auto and the other on the ground.

When Davis became troublesome and attempted to resist arrest, Patrolman Thompson struck him on the head several times with his mace, inflicting painful flesh wounds. He finally submitted to arrest and did not require the attention of a physician.

The men claimed they found the liquor along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

The only consolation Pittsburgh has these days is that the town has the best sixth-place ball club in the majors.

Last year the Pirates beat out everybody for the honor of being murdered by the Yanks.

This season the club is operating under the same manager but in a different manner.

The Pirates are the league champions, but they are traveling under false pretenses.

The club began the season in orthodox fashion, but in a couple of weeks folded up like a pair of freshly pressed pants.

Since then they have been dashing forward with all the zest of a stalled flivver backing up.

The Pirates have a lot of stars twinkling in the wrong direction. Many have swell reputations which are a year old.

However, you'll have to give them credit for one thing. They've raised the social status of the second division.

"BROADWAY JONES" GIVEN ON RIVER

they purchased a flat boat, upon which they constructed a cabin and floated down the river on this improvised houseboat, playing each night in school houses and halls.

A Real Steamboat Next.

Then they purchased a steamboat. When the houseboat was sunk, Mrs. Bryant and Billy obtained vaudeville engagements, and with every $20 they sent him. Sam Bryant bought lumber for a new boat, which was to be a show boat. Six years after the present and larger boat was built.

Mrs. Bryant recalls that their boats didn't always boast electric lights. In the early days her husband used to borrow lanterns from the farmers who came to see the show and arranged them as foot lights.

The Play Ends.

While we've been reminiscing about the early days of show boats and the Bryants, the chorus has been gathering for the finale of the stage, and the curtain goes down on "Broadway Jones." The actors scurry from the stage into the pit for the overture.

The audience hurries down the gang plank, and before the actors have had time to remove their grease paint and change into street costumes, the tail light of the last automobile is vanishing in the distance. Twenty years or so ago farmers came from outlying farms and the men hitched up the horses while their wives talked with the "actor folk."

Lights go out, and the only reminder of the show is a faint odor of peanuts which pervades the auditorium.

The boats, of which there are twelve on the rivers, have a seating capacity ranging from 200 to 1,200. The "Cotton Blossom" is the largest of the boats.

It's fun to live on a show boat. Many legitimate theater actors pass their vacations working on the boats, for they enjoy the river life. "Big time" troupers play the rivers because they like its lazy atmosphere and few demands.

Special Arrangements for Babies

Even the babies, 'tis said, prefer show boats to regular theaters. When a baby cries in a regular theater, his mother has to leave the theater in the midst of the performance, but, on the boat, just as likely as not the cook will come in, take the baby for a walk around the deck, and give it a cracker to soothe its ruffled feelings while the mother remains in her seat.

Show boat life isn't all moonlight and romance and glamor. There are hot days on the lower Mississippi, when not a leaf is stirring, not a ripple disturbs the quiet of the Father of Waters, and the butter in the kitchen is of the consistency of soup, but there's not a regular trouper on the boats who doesn't love the life. "Just can't break away," they say. There's something about the midwestern streams that fascinates and holds them.

READ THIS FIRST:
Janet Mary James, eighteen, sweet and clever and good, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who did the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. In New York Janet meets Dr. Ballard Riley, who is known as a woman hater. Ballard dates her up, and Janet gets a lot of fun out of having a date with him. Janet meets Flavia Marlowe, Sir Henry Martindale and "Putty" Bigelow. Flavia, about fifty years old, is beginning to wrinkle and trying to hide it. She is wealthy, and has a studio in the Village. Flavia persuades Janet to lease a studio. It is Janet's first evening in her new home, and she is entertaining Flavia and her friends. Later there is a knock at the door, and Ballard Riley steps in.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIII

Ballard Riley? He stood there, with his hat in his hand, smiling. "I thought I'd surprise you, princess. I was going by."

He looked at her slowly and caught a whiff of liquor. Janet was paralyzed. She caught herself quickly.

"Oh, do come in, Doctor. I am just having a few friends—"

He stepped inside the door and looked around. The sight made him furious.

He bowed coldly to everyone, as Janet introduced him, and would not sit down. He kept his hat in his hand.

"I was just passing, Miss James, and I wondered if you had your place all set yet, I really haven't a minute."

Janet sent him a pleading look. He started to the door, and she followed him, uncertainly. Her knees felt weak, and she was heart sick. At the door, he said, very low:

"I'll call you tomorrow. I want to talk with you. Look out for yourself, you poor little fool."

Janet was not angry. She caught at his hand and held it a moment. She felt like a little girl about to cry. Suddenly Ballard felt sorry, and wanted to protect her. He pushed the door open and went back.

"I've changed my mind. I'm going to stay awhile after all."

Sir Henry was the only one who kept his head and acted natural, Flavia, for her part, was too surprised. She wondered who the man could be. Where had Janet met that handsome, marvelous fellow? Little Janie was holding out on her.

Esther sat in a corner and said nothing. Sir Henry brought the cocktail shaker, and pouring a drink, offered it to the doctor. He pushed it away, almost rudely.

"I am a physician, and I have learned, through observation, that it pays to be temperate these days. You'll pardon me if I decline. I'd prefer to have someone else dig my grave."

In Flavia's words, he threw a wet blanket on the party the minute he came in. A half hour later they had all gone, and it was only about eleven o'clock.

When the door closed behind Janet sank to the divan and buried her flushed face in her hands. Ballard crossed and sat down beside her. He lifted her head and felt that it was not and feverish. Then he got up, opened his case and, going into the kitchen, mixed some medicine. With a little sob she took it and drained the glass.

He took her in his arms and sat in the big chair. It seemed natural little girl to him. It did not enter his mind that he was making love to her. There were no words spoken for several minutes. Slowly Janet raised her head and looked into his face. Her voice choked:

"I'll bet you think I'm a little beast."

Ballard held her closer to him and shook his head.

"No, little girl, I think you are a very silly child—and I hate to see you taking up with a crowd like that. You are just getting off on the wrong slipper. Where did you meet that gang?"

She told him of Flavia and the theater, and how kind they had been to her.

Then she tried to stand up and swayed. Her head fell over on his shoulder and her voice was low and shamed.

"Oh, this is the first time I have ever been this way. I have only drunk twice before."

Ballard held her up and placed his arm around her.

"Of course, I know you haven't been making a practice of this. Otherwise, I wouldn't be here with you."

Suddenly Janet began to cry. He made no attempt to stop her, but sat down in the chair again and held her. When she had quieted,

He took her in his arms.

his voice was kind.

"Now, we'll have to get that pretty dress off so you won't sleep in it and spoil it, Princess. Then we'll put you to bed and you'll be all right."

She shot him a wild, scared look, and tried to stand up. He shook his head and smiled.

"Now don't misunderstand me. I wouldn't harm you for the world. But I'm a doctor, and you are a pretty sick little girl. I'm going to put you to bed."

Janet knew he would put her to bed whether she struggled against it or not. She was embarrassed and heart sick at the idea. But she knew Dr. Ballard Riley. He turned his back as she slipped the gown over her body. Then he sat her in the big chair while he opened her bed and made it up. Taking her in his arms, he carried her to it and covered her over like a baby.

There were tears in her eyes, and her face was flushed from the blushes that came and went. If he had not felt so sorry for her, he would have been amused. She did not seem to remember similar circumstances in the hospital her first night in New York. He reminded her of this and she smiled faintly.

Ballard Riley took her hand and kissed it lightly, pulled the covers closely about her, and with a soft "Good night, Princess," switched off the lights and closed the door after him.

Janet was asleep in two minutes. In the morning she awakened feeling perfectly normal. The medicine had done that. But her first thought was the memory of how Ballard had seen her and she felt she could never face him again.

She was getting breakfast in the little kitchenette when the door bell rang. A messenger with a box. She opened it with trembling fingers and there were two dozen white roses.

Janet dropped her face in her hands and cried. It was too good to be true. Then, he forgave her. He did not think she was common. There was a little white card with the simple greeting:

"Good morning, Princess."

Not another word. Suddenly the morning was beautiful, and her heart sang with joy. She had no more than finished breakfast when the telephone rang. Of course it was Flavia calling to see how she felt.

But there was another surprise. It was Ballard's voice, cheery and kind, asking if she would kindly tell him how the Princess of Greenwich Village had survived the night.

She thanked him brokenly for the flowers. How could he be so good? He promised to call her again the next day.

Janet sat down on the divan, her thoughts in a wild turmoil. She was in love. Suddenly she was sure of it. She knew that what she felt must be love—like a woman would have for a man who meant everything in the world to her.

Janet was young in years, but old in many ways, and capable of deep feeling. This she inherited from her mother. An animal in distress would bring tears of pity to her eyes. She ached with sympathy for anyone in trouble or need. It was this same sense of deep feeling that was destined to bring to Janet days and months of intense suffering and heartbreak.

Sometimes it seems almost fortunate that there are people who seemingly are hardened so that nothing touches them. Selfishness and coldness seem at times an asset, for they dull the finer sensibilities and save much distress and misery.

Janet was suddenly swept off her feet with the intensity of her love for Ballard Riley. Her heart leaped at the thought of seeing him again and turned cold with the possibility that he might not ever love her. It did not seem possible. Surely it would not be fair for a woman to care so much for a man and for him not to have any affection for her.

She looked at the flowers and her heart warmed. Ah, yes, he did like her a little. Men did not send flowers to girls if they didn't at least feel quite interested in them. But her heart sank again. What if he were only trifling with her? What if she were only just a passing fancy? He was a handsome, wealthy doctor, and could have almost anyone he wanted.

She clinched her teeth and threw back her head. She would make him care for her—at any price. She would use every wile a woman could possibly use to capture his fancy and hold it.

Flavia could give her some good advice about men. Some of these days she would have a heart to heart talk with her about Ballard Riley.

The Theater

Charlie Chaplin is in a quandary. He has been debating over his picture "City Life," for the last month. Hollywood has gone "talky" and he is being urged by some of his friends to add spoken lines.

Others of his admirers insist, as the world's greatest pantomimist, characters he portrays would not fit the voice. Yet, Chaplin, who always has been even with if not ahead in the movie game, does not want to lag with what is most fashionable in movie-making.

They argue that he speaks in a cultured English voice, and the characters he portrays would not fit the voice. Yet, Chaplin, who always has been even with if not ahead in the movie game, does not want to lag with what is most fashionable in movie-making.

STOMACH TROUBLE BANISHED BY USE OF NEW KONJOLA

Forced To Live On Diet For Years Now States That Every Ugly Symptom Is Ended.

Thousands of men and women in Xenia have been relieved of many of the worst forms of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel miseries through the use of this celebrated new Konjola medicine, and thousands of others in this city are still suffering from these ailments.

ments, but every day more and more of these same sufferers are turning to Konjola for relief. Hundreds of statements have been published from this city, in which they tell how Konjola restored them to a new state of health. Just a few days ago Mr. R. H. King, 246 Chestnut St., Xenia, made the following statement to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is explaining the merits of Konjola.

"I know that Konjola has real merit because this medicine has restored my health after everything else failed to give me any relief," said Mr. King, "and for that reason I think that others should know about it so that they too, may have the means for gaining the same relief that I did."

"For the past five years I suffered untold miseries from a disordered stomach and during all that time I never found a medicine that would give me a minute's relief. A year ago last October I was forced to give up my work and remain at home. I steadily lost weight and strength until I was a mere shadow of my former self. After every meal I would vomit something terrible from the quantities of gas that formed. Sometimes it was very hard for me to get my breath. I had to stop eating all kinds of solid foods because they absolutely refused to digest, but would always sour on my stomach and cause that bloating. So I ate nothing but broth and soup and very little of either of these two. My nerves could not stand up under the strain and caused me to spend many sleepless nights. I really did not know what to do for myself and thought that I would go through the rest of my life in this condition."

"But now I know that Konjola is a medicine that will surely end stomach trouble because I have completed a treatment and there is not a trace of a single symptom remaining. I am so thankful for the relief it has given me that I will always have the highest praise and recommendation for this remedy. Soon after I started on the treatment I noticed that my stomach did not cause such intense misery and of course, I wouldn't think of missing a dose. Now I want to tell everyone that I can eat whatever is placed before me without suffering the least bit afterward. The gas bloating is a thing of the past. I am steadily gaining in weight and strength and feel just like a different person. Since the gas does not form I never have any trouble breathing. It is really a pleasure to sit down to a meal because I know the food will digest perfectly. Since the stomach trouble is ended my nerves have stopped bothering me and so I enjoy sound and refreshing sleep every night. That is my reason for recommending this medicine and I shall continue to do so every chance I get."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples

CHURCH WOULD SELL REALTY; APPEAL IS FILED; OTHER NEWS

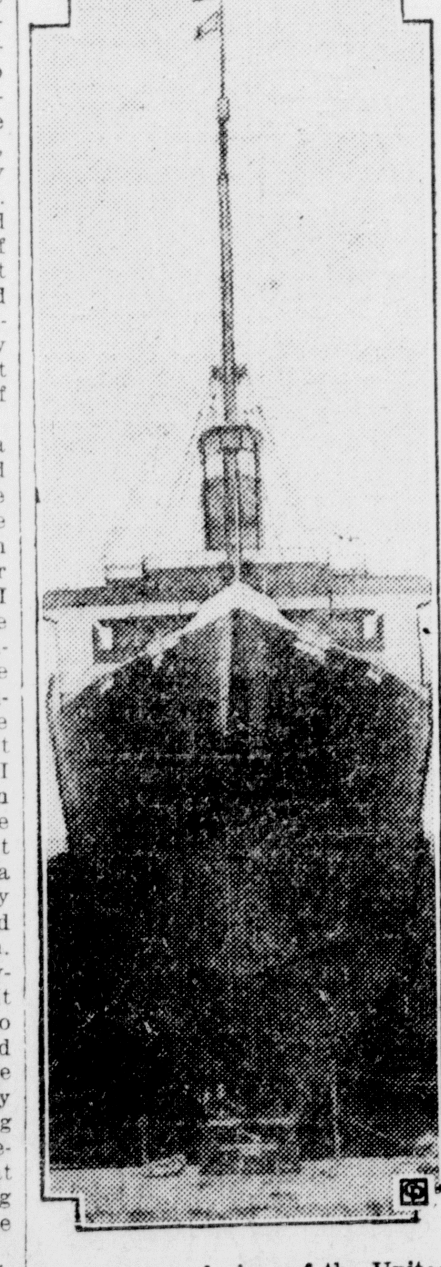

Since the congregation of the Mt. Zion M. E. Church of Jefferson Twp., has become extinct by reason of death and dispersion of its members, the church trustees have filed an application in Common Pleas Court for authority to sell the real estate. Two tracts of ground are described in the application. Trustees pointed out that the officers of the church, at their regular meeting, decided the land is no longer needed for its original purpose. Marshall and Marshall are attorneys for the plaintiff.

FILES APPEAL
An appeal from a judgment of R. O. Copey, justice of the peace, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Ben and Anna Green against James W. Haynes, who sued for $30 and recovered a judgment of $29.50 and costs on a claim for carpenter work performed on the garage owned by the defendants.

MUST APPEAR IN COURT
On motion of the plaintiff in the case of John T. Harbline, Jr., against Perry and Lizzie Harding, the court has ordered the defendants to appear in Common Pleas Court August 22 to answer concerning their property. They are enjoined from disposing of the property until a further court order.

It was claimed in the motion that the plaintiff recovered a judgment for $354.71 and costs January 10, 1928 and that an execution issued was returned entirely unsatisfied.

AWARDED JUDGMENT
A judgment for $170.10 on a note has been awarded in favor of John T. Harbline, Jr., against John T. Barnett and Majon Barnett in Common Pleas Court.

ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR OPENS

BOARD THINKS 1928 EVENT WILL EXCEED PREVIOUS AFFAIRS

Fine Exhibits Mark Exposition Here; Races Feature

The eighty-ninth annual Greene County Fair, July 31 to August 3, keeping step with unprecedented progress recorded during past years, will present for the public's approval Wednesday the largest and best fair in its history.

This year the program arranged will far exceed any previous year's exhibits.

Tuesday was technically the opening day and throngs of people wended their way through the fairgrounds watching final preparations being made by exhibitors.

The fair, Secretary J. Robert Bryson points out, is not only a place to receive education, but to obtain benefits from exhibiting products, wares, live stock, fine arts and many other things on which its welfare is dependent.

"It is the one week in the fifty-two where much valuable information is assembled and will bring knowledge to the attendants that will add to their prosperity and happiness for years to come," he said.

The 1928 fair is expected to surpass any fair of previous years by way of exhibits, amusements and horse races.

The cream of products and all pursuits and activities of the people of Greene County are on display. Primarily, of course, the fair is an agricultural exposition, as it has been traditionally. It is efficiently diversified, however, to appeal to all classes and occupations.

The enrollment of the Boys and Girls 4-H Club Exhibits, which have been a part of the fair for several years, is estimated at 450. Their exhibits will include 250 in clothing, seventy in food clubs and 100 boys in livestock clubs, calves, pigs and poultry.

The Greene County Fair has provided $900 in prize money for this department. In addition to these prizes, a number of business men contributed money which will be used in sending winning demonstration teams to the Ohio State Fair.

Music will be furnished during the week by the Osborn Community Band, which will play Wednesday; the Xenia Municipal Band, Thursday; and the New Burlington Community Band, Friday.

The F. E. Gooding Co., will have charge of the amusement rides at the fair. A. E. Staub, Tippecanoe City, will start the horses for the races.

The women of the Methodist Church, Port William, have charge of the dining hall. Mrs. Mattie Smith is in charge of the W. C. T. U. building. Articles may be checked there, drinking cups obtained and public telephone service and other conveniences are provided, including a rest room and an emergency room.

In the Greene County 4-H Club Exhibits, there are 450 boys and girls enrolled in thirty organized groups, every township having one or more organized groups.

Clothing Club exhibits were judged Monday and Tuesday and the garments are on display in the Art Hall. Food Club exhibits will be judged Wednesday, each member exhibiting a poster illustrating part of the club project.

Dairy calves, pigs and poultry will be judged Wednesday morning. Demonstration teams competing for trips to the state fair will demonstrate Thursday morning in the county health nurses exhibit.

The big live stock parade is scheduled for Friday at 12 o'clock. All the live stock exhibits will pass in review before the grandstand. Following this will be the float parade.

"BROADWAY JONES" ON RIVER

Pleasant Life Of Show-Boat Troupe Fascinates Actors Writer Finds.

Left, above, Betty Bryant with her duck; right, an old photo of Mrs. Violet Bryant; below, her husband, Sam, and Betty, in costume.

(This is the second of two pictorial sketches of life on a show boat, as seen by Miss Bonita Witt, sent by Central Press and The Gazette to join trouper on the boat.)

Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette.

ON BOARD AN OHIO RIVER SHOW BOAT, Aug. 1.—Come on, let's attend a performance on the Bryans' show boat, "Broadway Jones."

The old George M. Cohan success is the play. A rollicking New Year's party is in progress on the fair-sized stage. What matter if there are only three in the chorus? What they lack in numbers they make up in enthusiasm. Even the leadin' lady—on the river it's always leadin' lady—Mrs. Violet Bryant, with the accent on the first syllable—Mrs. Billy Bryant, trips along with the chorus to swell its number.

Captain Billy, by day carpenter, electrician, business manager and part owner, essays the role of "Broadway Jones."

The "villain" plays the piano in the orchestra and the juvenile lead pounds the drums.

Something Doing Every Minute. At the end of the first act Captain Billy and the juvenile lead man do a vaudeville specialty, for river audiences like their amusement to be continuous.

Between the second and third acts Mrs. Bryant plays a saxophone solo, and her small daughter, Betty, sings and dances. Although she's only five, Betty's a veteran trouper—been acting since she was able to walk. At night she's a serious young actress, but in the daytime you'll find her on the bank, making mud pies with village youngsters, or strolling up town with her mother—a tin duck, her pet, waddling behind them.

The day I walked "up town" with Betty and the duck we attracted as much attention as a circus parade. The duck marched sedately behind us, quacking loudly at each curbstone, until Betty lifted it either up or down.

She's the Star—and How! Folk who have come to the boat year after year have looked forward to Mrs. Violet Bryant's specialty. Until recently she was the boat's leadin' lady; now she takes character parts and sings solos in costume.

It was Mrs. Bryant's initiative which led to the Bryans' "going on the river" some twenty-five years ago. She and her husband had toured the southwest with their medicine show, interspersing their sales of medicine with vaudeville acts. Among the performers were Joe Keaton and the girl who later was to become his wife, and the mother of Buster, movie star of today.

Abandoning tent shows, the Bryans toured Pennsylvania, renting halls in which to give plays at night and sell their medicine.

Then the Bryans and their two children, Billy and Florence, obtained an engagement on the show boat Water Queen. Next season

GOVERNOR AL SMITH ENDS VACATION TO PREPARE CAMPAIGN

Conference With Raskob Planned On Board Yacht

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Governor Al Smith today was to forsake swimming in Long Island waters to get back in the swim of the presidential campaign.

Having enjoyed a five day's rest at Canoe Place Inn, seven miles from here, the governor planned to motor to New York this afternoon where he is expected to have several conferences with John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic committee, before returning to Albany on Sunday. One of these conferences with Raskob may take place tomorrow aboard the yacht of William H. Todd, one of the governor's millionaire friends.

As soon as he returns to the capital, the governor will dispose of state business that has piled up during his brief absence and then settle down to whip into final shape the address he will deliver on August 22, when he is to be formally notified of the presidential nomination. He hopes to complete work on his acceptance speech by the middle of the month so he will have an opportunity to get another brief vacation, possibly in the Adirondacks before the notification.

While the governor never has enjoyed better health than at present, members of his family and his close friends have advised him to get all the rest he can between now and the first part of September when he will launch his active campaign.

One of the first decisions which the governor is expected to make upon his return to Albany, is whether Senator Key Pittman of Nevada will act in the dual capacity at the notification ceremony of formally notifying the governor of his nomination and also presiding as chairman. It is understood the governor may decide to invite Franklin D. Roosevelt, who placed him in nomination at the Houston convention, to preside at the notification meet.

While here on his vacation the governor has refused to comment on the recent attack made on him by William Allen White, Kansas editor, but he has indicated that a reply may be expected in the near future. He smiled when he learned White had retorted that part of his attack which charged him with voting to protect vice and gambling when he was a young Tammany assemblyman.

Hero's Kin Sues

Court action has again brought in review the tempestuous life of General Sam Houston, hero of the battle of San Jacinto, and president of the early republic of Texas. Mrs. Temple Houston, of Wichita Falls, Tex., widow of the general's son, has brought a libel suit against a magazine for printing statements about his parents which she brands untrue. She is joined in the suit by her three sons and daughters.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Louis Meyerson, 40, was shot and killed early today as he lay in bed. His wife, Rebecca, told police he was killed by one of two intruders who were young and swarthy.

Two straw hats, left by the murderers in their flight, furnished the only clues. Mrs. Meyerson said her husband had no enemies.

War Ace Is Killed

When his plane crashed at Providence, R. I., during an air meet, Clifton Thompson, Lafayette Escadrille ace, burned to death before the eyes of his bride a few months. Osmond Mather, of Hartford, Conn., also met death in the crash.

PRESIDENT CLOSES FIFTH WHITE HOUSE YEAR ON THURSDAY

Coolidge Greatly Improved In Health From Vacation

SUPERIOR, WIS., Aug. 1.—Tomorrow, Calvin Coolidge will bring to a close his fifth year in the White House. He will spend the day quietly, fishing the Bruie River nearby Cedar Island Lodge, happy in the thought he has but seven months more to spend at the exacting job of chief executive of the nation.

At least so his confidants say as to the latter. Those members of the executive staff attached to the summer White House detail who are closest to him say that the final acceptance of his decision not to run again and the subsequent nomination of Herbert Hoover have lifted years from him in action and appearance.

It is certain that the month and a half on the Bruie River thus far has worked wonders physically on the President. When he arrived on the 15th of June he seemed underweight. His complexion was pasty and he seemed tired almost to the point of exhaustion. Six weeks of constant fishing and outdoor life on the Pierce estate, however, obviously have put him back on his feet, so to speak. He again tips the scales at his usual 158-160 weight; the sun and wind have tanned his face, and the lines of fatigue are almost wholly disappeared.

A year ago tomorrow, Mr. Coolidge electrified a dozen newspapermen, and very shortly thereafter the whole country, by handing out in Rapid City, S. D., a little type-written slip saying merely: "I do not wish to run in 1928." From that date on, right up to the Republican National Convention at Kansas City last June, the thought persisted he was not sincere—that he could be "drafted."

Two draw fines

Pleading guilty to charges of intoxication, John Stewart and Susie Smith, both colored, were each fined $10 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning. They were arrested at the John Barnett saw mill shortly after midnight Tuesday by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and J. E. Craig. The pair may be committed to the County Jail.

FIRST PLANE TAKES OFF AT CLEVELAND; DAYTON IS SERVED

Postmasters To Fly To Cleveland To Celebrate Line

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1.—The first air mail plane to pass through here on the Cleveland-Louisville route beginning operation today, departed from the Columbus air port at 6:25 a. m. this morning. It was a southbound plane with Pilot William F. McConnell at the controls. Three bags of mail were deposited and the same number taken aboard.

Pilot McConnell landed at 6:22 a. m. and took off again as soon as the mail could be loaded. The second southbound plane is due here from Cleveland at 7:45 a. m. The air mail planes will stop at Dayton and Cincinnati in addition to Columbus.

The Cleveland-Louisville air mail route is known as "No. 16," and is operated on contract by the Continental Air Lines, Inc., of Cincinnati.

Simultaneously with the inauguration today of the new air mail route, the reduced postage rates go into effect. First class matter may now be sent at five cents for the first ounce and ten cents for each additional ounce regardless of distance, as compared with the ten-cent first ounce tariff in the past.

It was announced here that Postmaster Fred H. Tibbets, will fly to Cleveland tonight with the first northbound air mail plane in a tri-motored Ford craft, accompanying the air mail. Aboard the Ford craft will be postmasters from Louisville, Cincinnati, Dayton and Akron as well as Tibbets. All are to be the guests of a dinner given by Postmaster H. A. Taylor of Cleveland.

WOMAN INJURED AS AUTO STRIKES HAY WAGON ALONG PIKE

Mrs. Ralph Cooder, Dayton, Sustains Broken Ribs

Mrs. Ralph Cooder, 30, 630 Wayne Ave., Dayton, O., suffered broken ribs and three other occupants of a roadster escaped injury when the auto crashed into the side of a hay wagon driven by William Bone, Dayton Pike, just outside the Xenia city limits on the Dayton Pike at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

The roadster, traveling toward Dayton, smashed into the wagon while attempting to pass another car. The roadster overturned and the wagon was damaged.

Bone, who was standing up driving the team of horses, was thrown into the wagon and slightly injured.

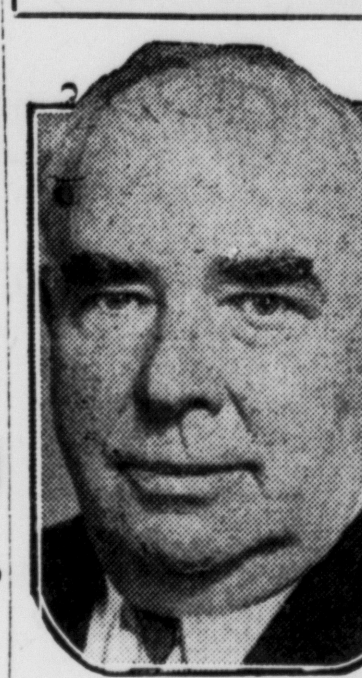

The roadster was also occupied by Mrs. Cooder's husband, the latter's brother, Paul Cooder, Dayton, driver, and Frank Orr, 538 S. High St., Washington C. H., all of whom were unhurt.

The injured woman and her husband, were picked up by a passing motorist, and removed to McCallan Hospital here, where Mrs. Cooder's injuries were treated by Dr. A. C. Messenger. She was taken home half an hour later.

The occupants of the auto were returning to Dayton from Washington C. H. Bone was driving to his home on the Shoup farm on the Dayton Pike, half a mile northwest of this city.

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, investigated the accident. Bone refused to prosecute and no arrests were made.

SERIOUSLY ILL

George Brennan, Illinois Democratic political leader, is critically ill in a Chicago hospital on the eve of one of the biggest campaigns of his career.

NUN DENIES CHARGE OF PLOTTING DEATH OF ALVARO OBREGON

Remains Calm While Slayer Denies He Was Influenced

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 1.—Despite the fact that Jose De Leon Toral, the young assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, reluctantly admitted at his preliminary court examination that he had been "indirectly influenced" in his determination to slay Gen. Obregon by conception Acevedo De La Lata, Mother Superior of Espinas Santo Convent, the nun remained impassively calm today, reiterating her denial of guilt.

The preliminary court inquiry, which is being conducted by Judge Alonzo Aznar Mendoza has placed the following three persons in chief roles of Mexico's latest political melodrama:

Toral, 27 year old religious fanatic, who calmly confessed the killing.

Mother Superior De La Lata, who denies any guilt whatsoever.

Manuel Trejo, labor leader, and former government employee who is accused by the police of having furnished the pistol with which Gen. Obregon was shot to death on July 17.

Toral and the nun, who are under arrest, are stoical and face the future with the utmost calmness. Trejo is missing and is believed to have escaped to the United States.

For many hours Toral underwent relentless questioning yesterday, and faced a continuation of the grilling today. It is expected that the formal accusation of murder will be lodged against him tomorrow. In the Mexican courts this is equivalent to a grand jury true bill in United States criminal procedure.

Toral has sat through the proceedings impassively, at times seemingly annoyed by the questions.

"It was all very simple; any one could understand it," he repeated several times.

It is the contention of the prosecution that Toral was influenced to commit the crime by a conversation he had with Mother Superior Concepcion several days before the shooting. Toral stoutly maintains that no one but himself knew of his plan to kill the president-elect.

The nun is apparently a woman of superior intellectuality. She is about 45 years old, well possessed and stately in appearance. She told newspaper correspondents she faces the future with calmness.

Aside from the preliminary court inquiry Gen. Antonio Zertuche, chief of police for the federal district, is continuing his own investigation. Evidently he has not yet decided if Toral acted alone. He is determined to ascertain if a plot existed and if so to learn the identity of the ringleaders.

Toral was given no help in this direction. He says he knew of no plot and acted because he was actuated by "heavenly motives." He said he feels he committed no sin and that the killing of Gen. Obregon "will not prevent him from going to heaven."

The most tragic figure at the hearing is Toral's young wife, She is destitute. Already she is the mother of two children and expects to become a mother again. For the time being she is living on the bounty of relatives.

SPANISH AVIATORS TO CROSS ATLANTIC WESTWARD ON TRIP

Huge Hydroplane Used By Flyers In Daring Effort

CADIZ, Spain, Aug. 1.—Bound for the Azores in the first leg of a projected round-the-world flight, Commander Ramon Franco, famous Spanish aviator, hopped off from here at 7:30 a. m. today (8:30 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time), in a huge Dornier-Superwal hydroplane, the Numancia.

Franco was accompanied by Captains Ruiz De Alda and Gallarza, of the Spanish Royal Flying Force and a civilian mechanic, Pablo Rada.

Radiograms received throughout the morning said the Numancia was proceeding without incident. The plane was in touch with stations in the Azores and Lisbon, the location being indicated through the radiometer.

The start of the flight today followed months of intensive preparation. The hydroplane was assembled here by German mechanics and then put through severe tests. It was fitted with four Napier engines of 500 horsepower each and is said to be capable of maintaining an average speed of 125 miles an hour under ordinary conditions.

The Numancia has a wing-spread of ninety-five feet and is of all-metal construction. It weighs 13,000 pounds when empty and is capable of carrying a load of 8,000 pounds. Its fuel capacity exceeds 2,000 gallons, giving it a cruising range of about 2,500 miles.

According to tentative plans announced before the start of the flight, Franco intends to fly to Halifax after reaching the Azores. From Halifax, Franco will fly down the Atlantic coast to Havana, stopping at New York on the way down.

From Havana, he will fly to Mexico City, then up the Pacific coast to Alaska, across the Bering Sea, down the coast of Siberia and Manchuria to Japan, thence to the Philippines, Burma, India and Persia in turn and across Europe back to Spain. Suitable stops will be made enroute.

Two years ago, Franco successfully planned the South Atlantic from Europe to South America for the first time. Ruiz De Alda and Rada accompanied him on that flight also. Gallarza won fame as an aviator in 1926 when he flew from Spain to Manila.

ANTI-SALOON BODY TO ACT SEPARATELY DURING CAMPAIGN

Sees Prospects For Election Of Dry Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Anti-Saloon League of America, while supporting Herbert Hoover for the presidency, will wage its campaign entirely aloof from the Republican party, General Superintendent F. Scott McBride said on his return here today from a survey of five states.

The dry league is raising its own campaign fund—with a maximum of $500,000 authorized—and will support proved dry congressmen regardless of party affiliations. The campaign to defeat Governor Alfred E. Smith is already underway, but will not reach full tide until early in September.

Coupled with this explanation of the League's plan of operations in the political war zone, Dr. McBride declared that if 90 per cent of the church vote is cast, Hoover will be elected.

"On the other hand," he said, "it is fully realized that if the dries in the churches are inactive and indifferent, the aggressive wet interests will be able to place Smith in the White House."

McBride declared that during his trip he found dries anxious in Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia.

He offered a prediction that a "very dry" congress will emerge from the November elections.

The prediction was made without regard to whether it would encourage Democratic dries to vote for Smith in the election, or whether it might convince Republican wets that it would be a futile thing to desert Hoover in the vain hope of bringing back beer.

At present, McBride said, the senate shows 74 per cent dry among the Republicans and 71 per cent dry among the Democrats, while the house as a whole is 75 per cent dry.

"The situation on behalf of a dry congress never looked so good in any former campaign as at the present," said McBride. "In none of the primaries already held has there been any unfavorable reaction but a number of places have been good gains."

ATTORNEYS APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Seeking reversal of the action of the Court of Appeals in upholding the jury verdict which awarded $1,500 to J. Carl Marshall and L. T. Marshall, Xenia attorneys, Attorney G. E. Kreitzer, Dayton, as counsel for Wilbur E. and Alfred M. Wolf, Dayton attorneys, filed an appeal Wednesday in the Ohio Supreme Court at Columbus, on behalf of the Wolfs, who were defendants in an action brought by the Xenia lawyers two years ago to collect $1,500 for services rendered.

The Xenia law firm claimed that it was employed under a written contract to settle up an estate involving real estate valued at $100,000. When payment for this service was refused, the Xenia lawyers brought suit in Dayton and received a favorable jury verdict a year ago. The verdict was later reversed by the appellate court.

When 10 Miles Per Hour Was Considered Speeding

THERE was a day when speed cops rode bicycles—
There was a day when gay dogs in yellow dusters endangered human life “scorching” along the road at ten miles per hour—

There was a day when every parlor had a “whatnot” filled with “what-nots”—

Many Xenians can recall the not-far distant day of the red-plush album in the parlor, the wire rack for picture post-cards, the glass case with its artificial flowers, the inevitable stereoscope on the marble-topped table and perhaps the early, squeaking phonograph with its horn built like a huge morning glory and its group of cylinder records.

These days are not far away in Xenia—not far away any where in this great, big, hurly-burly country, where changes are effected so quickly that they form a kaleidoscope of changing patterns of a nation's progress.

Those were lazy days—summers of fanning on the front porch or hitching up the horse and carriage for a picnic outing at Neff Park; winters of sitting around the base-burner in the parlor reading the almanac enlivened by an occasional bob-sled ride or a visit of “Uncle Tom's Cabin” to the Opera House.

Merchandising in those days was also a simplified problem. Xenia was established here as a convenience to the surrounding countryside and merchants established themselves here because the countryside took advantage of this convenience.

There was little question of competition because the transportation problem involved in going elsewhere for merchandise was insurmountable usually under the prevailing conditions. The merchant dozed in the back of his store relying on the bell fastened to the front door to announce the arrival of a customer. It wasn't greatly a question of choice with the customer—it was a question of getting what you could.

Lots of things brought about a change in this old order, but perhaps the automobile was a greater contributor to the revolution of things as they were.

At first denounced as dangerous they were later accepted as “foolishness” until it dawned upon the small town merchant that here was both a boon and a bane. The auto so revolutionized travel that the customer found he could be choicy about his merchandise. It brought the merchandise of other cities within reach even as it made it possible for more frequent trips to the stores and improved delivery of the home-town merchant.

The Xenia merchant suddenly found himself on a competitive footing with merchants in Dayton, Springfield, Cincinnati, Columbus and elsewhere. He realized that to meet this competition he must present merchandise comparable in quality, quantity and style and he immediately took advantage of the fact that rental variations made it possible for him to do this and still under-cut the city merchant in price.

Because Xenia merchants were quick to sense this change in commercial conditions, Xenia has survived where other cities, comparable in size, have been retarded to the point of dissolution. Xenia merchants improved their stores, freshened their stocks, began to emphasize store service, made an earnest bid for the business that would have gone elsewhere. The stores that now stand as monuments to Xenia business, which compare favorably with those of cities much larger, prove the success of the experiment.

The automobile wrought a change here and Xenia's buying public has reaped the harvest. Xenians who have watched the transformation feel certain that should the airplane be responsible for a similar evolution in merchandising, Xenia merchants will be among those benefited and not among those damaged by the change.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fields and family, near Xenia, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cooper, South Solon, who entertained honoring the birthdays of their grandsons, Mr. John Fields, of Xenia and Mr. William Brown, Columbus. Those present were: Mrs. Bessie Smith and daughter, Pauline, Xenia; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McHenry and daughter Ruth of Selma, Miss Opal of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Knisley and daughter, Naomi of South Solon; Mr. Carrie Fields, Shady Grove and Mr. and Mrs. Chaney Clemons, South Solon.

TOURNAMENT-DINNER WELL ATTENDED AT CLUB

Rain interfered with the close of the mixed tournament at the Country Club, Tuesday evening, but did not affect the enjoyable social time during the evening.

Eight foursomes spent the late afternoon on the course and covers for about fifty were laid for dinner. The weekly party was supervised this week by Mrs. R. J. Kelly and Miss Bess Fulton.

The Turnbull family reunion will be held at the Fred Dobbins' farm, Wednesday, Aug. 8 at 12 o'clock.

Miss Sarah Hagar, N. Galloway St., is leaving August 9, for Chicago, where she will join Dr. and Mrs. Charles Galloway, and leave for Seattle and Alaska. Dr. Galloway is going on a hunting expedition into Alaska, accompanied by a well known explorer and another companion. Mrs. Galloway and Miss Hagar will leave Dr. Galloway at Skagway and will take the train overland to the Yukon. They will take the boat down the coast and join Dr. Galloway at Seattle. They expect to be gone two months.

Mrs. Frank Bickett and Miss Elizabeth Bickett left Wednesday morning for Lakeside to spend several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray McCampbell, Xenia, are announcing the birth of a ten-pound son, Tuesday. He has been named Merle Collins. The child is the third son in the family.

Miss Catherine Osterly left Tuesday evening for a trip to New York City and a stay of a few days at Atlantic City.

Stricken Girl Blames Self for Radium Poisoning

By SHIRLEY KIRKE
International Illustrated News Staff
Correspondent

"ONE LIFE—A little gleam of time between two eternities."—Carlyle.

Five women in New Jersey have been doomed to death by radium poisoning. One, Miss Grace Fryer, has offered her body, after death, to science that data thus obtained may help save others.

But Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, New York toxicologist, made a more startling suggestion. He said:

"We need more than bodies of victims. What is vitally wanted is for one of these unfortunate young women now in the throes of the poisoning to undergo experiments."

"That science may have the laboratory it requires in its quest of a cure of the dread disease, Katherine Schaub, of Newark, came forward with an offer of sacrifice far and beyond any other made. She proffered her living body for experiment."

That the medical world no longer be helpless, Miss Schaub, who wants to live, though life has become a torment, is ready to hazard a hastened death. Others have willed their bodies to science.

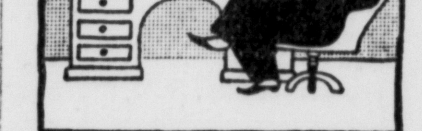

Miss Schaub, like the American soldier in Cuba who gave his living form to the yellow fever germ and thus helped save mankind from the ravages of the disease, stands ready for the great sacrifice of letting science experiment with her while she breathes.

"I would like their assurance that their experiments would not hasten my death," she said in her home in Newark. "However, I am willing, with my fullest confidence in the doctors, to undergo experiments that may save the other girls. Life is sweet, and I would rather go along as I am now than die suddenly from an experiment that went wrong. All I ask, beyond assurance they will do their best to protect my life, is that they keep me in the sunshine."

There is a spiritual touch in her offer, for she finds an opportunity to assuage the pangs of recollection. It was as instructor in an Orange, N. J., watch factory that she directed other employees to touch radium-tipped brushes to their lips. "I did not know it would harm them," she sighed. "I did it myself."

But Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, New York toxicologist, made a more startling suggestion. He said:

"We need more than bodies of victims. What is vitally wanted is for one of these unfortunate young women now in

Never a Marcel Wave
By Edna Wallace Hopper
On the stage, in public and at private functions my hair always attracts. During my performances women never fail to ask the secret of my perfect wave and the youthful, lively sheen of my hair. It is very simple. I wave my own hair. First I moisten it with my liquid hair-dress. Wave and Sheen. I use a comb to apply it. Then I carefully insert the combs. I tie a piece of chiffon over my head. By the time I am ready to complete my toilette the waves are in to stay. A radiant sheen, free from stickiness, is the chief charm of this simple method. Wave and Sheen is the only dressing I would use on my hair. It is the only preparation I know that does not give the "plastered" effect, which I cannot tolerate. The hair, must have air in order to be healthy and free from dandruff. You can get a bottle of my Wave and Sheen at any toilet counter. It is guaranteed. 75 cents.—Adv.

The County Library is planning a unique service to be extended patrons of the Greene County Fair. In accord with its policy of placing itself at the disposal of all who like to read, according to Miss Mildred Sandoe, librarian, there will be installed, in the Arts Hall, a miniature branch library and reading room, open for use to any who wish to take advantage of this opportunity to obtain interesting books for home reading.

All books will be available for home use. Books will be charged out for the regular period of two weeks but there will be no need to be no borrower's cards produced, the librarian announces. Borrowers are asked, however, to remember that all books drawn at the Fair Library are to be returned within the time limit to the Main Library.

A large map of Greene County, showing the extent and types of service given by the Greene County District Library will be given prominent display at the Library Booth at the Fair. This map shows the number and location of the schools served, as well as the location of library branches and deposit stations. The county librarian and other library workers will be in attendance on all Fair days and will be glad to explain the different phases of the work and to discuss the possibilities of extending the service to other communities.

"Most people find reading lists helpful," is the opinion of Miss Mildred Sandoe, county district librarian.

"Be sure, therefore, that you take advantage of those that will be given you at the County Library Fair Booth."

"More than a dozen lists have been prepared and attractively printed. The subjects range from western stories to books your friends are discussing and books for the home-maker. There are suggestions, we feel sure, for every type of reader and best of all, every book listed is owned by the county library and free to you for the asking."

HUDSON-ESSEX ARE VICTORS OVER LANG

The Hudson-Essex football team defeated the Lang Chevrolet Co. 11 to 9 in the first half of a scheduled double-header in the American League Tuesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The first game was limited to seven innings by agreement and the aftermath was called in the third inning because of darkness. Wet grounds and rain made conditions unfavorable for softball and airtight playing was next to impossible.

The victory strengthened the position of the Hudson-Essex in second place, one full game behind the league-leading Carroll-Blinder Co. line.

The Firemen will meet the Phillets in a National League game Wednesday night.

"Get All You Can, Give All You Can," John D.'s Motto

Rounding Corner of 89, His Philosophy the Same as at 60

By GRAHAM STEWART
International Illustrated News Staff Writer

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Sr., is one of the richest men in America—and one of the sanest. When he turned the corner of his eighty-ninth birthday he celebrated the event according to long-established custom. The immediate members of his family gathered at Pocantico Hills, certain cronies dropped in and a few neighbors called and extended their congratulations.

To these the Old King repeated a piece of philosophy that he had promulgated at sixty.

"I believe it is a religious duty to get all of the money you can, fairly and honestly, to keep all you can and give away all you can."

The simplicity of it is amazing. But no more incredible than the senior Rockefeller's efficiency in other things. Friends recall that when he began building his Pocantico Hills mansion he put the sun to "work" for him. He demanded four things in his expensive home—light and air, beauty and comfort.

In order to make sure of obtaining sunlight in his favorite rooms at such hours as he needed it, he ordered a small, boxlike structure to be built and placed upon a turntable in the exact center of his site. Ingeniously arranged mechanism made it possible for Mr. Rockefeller to seat himself in this "cage" and turn it about by means of levers. After weeks of experimenting he composed a timetable showing at which hour the sun would shine into each room of his new home.

Since he has settled to a tranquil routine of golf and quiet philanthropy, the president emeritus of Standard Oil has passed his winters at Ormond Beach, Fla., his Spring season at Lakewood and the long days of summer on his 6,000-acre Pocantico Hills estate. Thus at eighty-nine he is still able to enjoy the elusive exercise of swinging at a golf ball, and although his diet is restricted he still has a good deal of latitude in choosing his meals.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, SR.

For instance, he wanted light in his dining room in the morning and again at night. The only time he insisted upon light in his den, or office, was between three and four in the afternoon. His bedroom he wanted dark between at certain hours of the day. "Sun dial" house was built accordingly and architects consider it a model of planning.

Reminder of Good Old Days

JOE WALCOTT

BILLY VAN

(International Illustrated News)

BACK in the old days of flappers, there were no big purses and a man could give a lusty wallop.

Remember when Nelson, Britt, Wolgast, McGovern and Walcott were "knockin' 'em cold." It's over a quarter of a century ago, before the advent of the boxing commissions.

Joe Walcott, "The Barbados Demon," was the best of his class and welter champ from 1919-1922.

Joe was the clean-up kid and he became wealthy for those days. He is wealthy today, but in experience, and he is still cleaning up but on a menial job.

Joe pushes a broom for a small weekly wage instead of pushing leather for thousands, but still retains his humorous outlook on life. He loves to regale any listener among the actors who come to the theatre where he works with tales of the good old days.

to plague the political wiseacres. Briefly, it is the discovery that the wives of the candidates are rival aspirants for the position of mistress of the White House in about as real a sense as their husbands are rivals for the presidency.

That is to say, lots of votes will be cast for Mr. Hoover, or for Governor Smith, in accordance with the voters' personal preference for Mrs. Hoover or Mrs. Smith, rather than in accordance with any particular preference as between the official nominees of the Republican and Democratic conventions.

You can hear Mrs. Hoover's and Mrs. Smith's personalities contrasted with one another as a definitely recognized campaign issue at any gathering of women. To "mere men" it seems a queer way of arriving at a conclusion concerning a candidate's fitness for the presidency; perhaps the gals consider their menfolk equally ridiculous in their adhesive-plaster relation to mere parties.

The fact that the charming wife of the Democratic nominee used to "do her own work" is both an asset and a liability to her husband's campaign. Many of the fair voters are outspoken in their praise for her as a helpmate and a candidate for mistress of the White House; others frown upon her culinary accomplishments. Likewise the cultured wife of Nominee Hoover. To many of her sisters, she is regarded as the ideal personality for mistress of the White House, and they speak with bated breath of her social triumphs abroad. Still others seem to resent the suggestion of "superiority," although it is never phrased in just that way.

Their menfolk are going about the campaign in the usual, business-like, orthodox style, attending meetings, framing speeches, raising funds. Build up the bankroll and get out the vote—these are the shibboleths of the campaign.

PAIR FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE
AFTER ONE RESISTS ARREST

Putting up a fight when police attempted to arrest him, Arthur Davis, 32, Charles St., was painfully but not seriously beaten about the head by Patrolman Charles Thompson before he was subdued late Tuesday night.

Davis and Edward Thompson, 32, a barber, were arraigned before Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning for possessing liquor. Both pleaded guilty and were each fined $100 and costs. The pair may be committed to the County Jail.

Summoned to the site of the old Central High School building on

E. Market St., by complaints turned in by neighbors who had been awakened by the loud talking of the men Patrolmen Thompson and J. E. Craig found the pair quarrelling.

Davis and Thompson had driven to the spot in an auto. After alighting from the machine, they began to quarrel.

The officers discovered two half pints of liquor, one of which was found in the auto and the other on the ground.

When Davis became troublesome and attempted to resist arrest, Patrolman Thompson struck him on the head several times with his mace, inflicting painful flesh wounds. He finally submitted to arrest and did not require the attention of a physician.

The men claimed they found the liquor along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The only consolation Pittsburgh has these days is that the town has the best sixth-place ball club in the majors.

Last year the Pirates beat out everybody for the honor of being murdered by the Yanks.

This season the club is operating under the same manager but in a different manner.

The Pirates are the league champions, but they are traveling under false pretenses.

The club began the season in orthodox fashion, but in a couple of weeks folded up like a pair of freshly pressed pants.

Since then they have been dashing forward with all the zest of a stalled slobber backing up.

The Pirates have a lot of stars twinkling in the wrong direction. Many have swell reputations which are a year old.

However, you'll have to give them credit for one thing. They've raised the social status of the second division.

The Theater

Charlie Chaplin is in a quandary. He has been debating over his picture "City Life," for the last month. Hollywood has gone "talky" and he is being urged by some of his friends to add spoken lines.

Others of his admirers insist, as the world's greatest pantomimist, that he should not talk. They argue that he speaks in a cultured English voice, and the characters he portrays would not fit the voice. Yet, Chaplin, who always has been even with it not ahead in the movie game, does not want to lag with what is most fashionable in movie-making.

Scientists and movie cameramen have photographed for the first time the sacred dance of "lhamas" Mongolian Buddhist monks, never before witnessed by outsiders. The priests had never seen a camera before, and not realizing that their sacred secrets were to be stolen, consented to allow the visitors to enter the temple. Seven days of fasting and prayer to cleanse the temple of the unbelievers.

Ruth Donnelly, Broadway stage favorite and former leading woman for Gerge M. Cohan, has announced her engagement to Jose, the count of Cesa, cousin of King Alfonso of Spain.

Twenty Years '08- Ago -'28

An unsuccessful attempt was made to burglarize the Exchange Bank at Cedarville. N. D. Langer, manager of the Star theater, will put on a vaudeville show at the fairgrounds during the fair. Mr. Homer Hudson has returned home after a trip of several weeks' duration in Colorado.

When the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters meets Aug. 1, Mrs. Mary Grace Mohn, of South Bend, Ind., will demonstrate gypsy, Spanish and Mexican dances for the dancing instructors.

WARDEN IS PROBING FOILED JAIL BREAK

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1—Warden Thomas, of the Ohio Penitentiary, today advanced the opinion that the four convicts who attempted a prison break here yesterday had "outside help," and continued his investigation. The men got as far as the break cage, a wire screen separating them from the prison yard, before they were discovered. Those implicated were James Haggner, Cuyahoga County; Burton Carter, Darke County; James Scott, Montgomery, and J. Hart, Summit County. All with the exception of Hart have long records of escape attempts, prison officials declared.

"E" BRAND VEGETABLE-OIL TOILET SOAP

Scientific analysis of this fragrant, dainty soap would prove to you that it is in every point as fine as the more expensive toilet soaps. It is mild and soothing to the tenderest skin and lathers freely in the hardest water. An exceptional value at our low price. ONLY 5c A CAKE.

The walls of your home may reflect your face in their shining cleanliness and every detail of your home may be nearly perfect in its exquisite daintiness but unless you have given thoughtful attention to the quality of the toilet tissue used in your bathroom, infection and disease may enter in this obscure way.

"E" BRAND Toilet Tissue

is made by a process that insures its being free from any irritating chemicals and it is so carefully packed and sealed that no hands touch it until it is opened in your home. It is velvety soft and smooth, absorbs moisture like old linen. The rolls are thoroughly perforated so that it tears easily. Try it—see if it is not the most satisfactory toilet tissue you ever used.
